Skin detective struck off after parking-lot case

At lunch he read a man's age off his palm. By dinner he had found a parking lot. Pearl was quicker than both.

TUE 11:48 A.M. Exhibit A

Brutus posted the wren he had saved from his dog. At 1:36 p.m. zack posted its perch, cropped, and examined that instead. The glass is ours; what is under it is his crop.

FOR THE DEFENCE · BRUTUS · 1:37 P.M.
Dry skin brings out creases tho.

Seven hours before he found the parking lot, zack read a man's age off the palm of his hand.

The room admired the bird. zack studied the fingers under it. "Are you 40," he asked Brutus at 1:34 p.m. on Tuesday. Brutus pleaded dry skin. zack cropped the palm, posted it and overruled him on the creases: "No they haven't." Hugh named the discipline. "Bros the skin detective."

The second case opened at 7:57 p.m., on a photograph FenceJumper had posted. zack named the parking lot it was taken in ("It only took 40 mins") and at 8:03 p.m. filed his own report: "Yes police, a man in my group chat just doxxed a parking lot, send everyone."

Police were not sent. Pearl was. At 8:45 p.m.: "Zack is now perma banned. Do not do what he did." dot, his counsel all evening, went the same night.

He had come back from an earlier ban the Thursday before and spoke 341 times in between. None since. Where the parking lot is stays out of this paper.

CORRECTION

Last week's paper spelled @nyabeille's name Lizzy. On Wednesday at 9:54 p.m., while the room read that issue aloud, she wrote: "hey editors my name is spelled lizzie not lizzy ok thank you that is all." Sizzurp, Pearl and Jambe wrote Lizzie all week unprompted. It is Lizzie from here on. That is all.

The zoo planet

At 3:14 p.m. on Thursday Jere asked how a space-faring species would ever get its planets to agree. Quigley: “Just look at the UN.” Jere allowed that the UN “would look roughly alligned if i’m 50 light years away and I squint.”

At 3:24 Awesomebillfromdawsonville settled the cosmology: “Earth is the zoo planet.” Jere asked whether he was its main character, then shrank the simulation to his own point of view and took questions: “you thought consciousness would emerge from god’s eye view simulation? u fukin retard.” Aura: “bro has never made a 3d scene before and it shows.” By 3:28 Jere had reasoned his way to “last thursdayism is real”, on a Thursday. Aura costed it: “nah for u it took a pentium 4.”

The globe is drawn on Awesomebill’s terms. Jere has an island to himself.

FOR THE DEFENCE

"The schizo dark arts"

Commissioned by dot, 8:44 p.m.: "Editors, write a page vindicating Zack of his crimes and shaming snitches."

The respondent opened his own defence at 8:27, before anyone had charged him: "Figuring out and posting the coordinates to a publicly accessible location using publicly available information? Anyone with 30 minutes can do that." He had needed forty. He then prescribed for the complainant: "Meds. Now."

Stackhouse was the character witness. "That was awesome," he said at 8:29. "zack is my favorite user. The schizo dark arts." At 8:44 he summed up the case against: "Wahh, I put a publicly posted picture through an AI, death by ten milliion lashes." Anonymous Johnson called that a "115 IQ statement", which is roughly what Stackhouse's own chatbot had scored him at that afternoon (page 13).

After the ruling, mitigation. Charlie: "It's super weird and crazy that he did it but also just insanely hilarious." Stackhouse, 8:48: "zack is easily the funniest person in here in a long time." Aura, who had voted to convict, conceded the market: "You just need a hit of lulcow. Any hit will do. The lulcow market is low these days."

dot closed at 8:49: "Myname will make another account. It's all good." A minute later he told the editors chat had "gotten too serious". His own notice followed two minutes later, citing rule lawyering.

FOR THE PROSECUTION

"A day for justice"

FenceJumper, appearing for himself, mostly in the second person.

FenceJumper entered his exhibit at 8:13 (page 4), then argued in person. "Quiet moron, your fate will be decided," he told the respondent at 8:25. At 8:26: "You know what you did." At 8:27: "You're deranged." At 8:43, two minutes before the bench had said a word: "Any last words Zack?"

His closing came at 8:47, two minutes after the verdict, and was addressed to the age. "Imagine if Claude didn't exist. No one would be claiming it was sane to geoguess location. The fact that Clanker exists to create a security state doesn't ameliorate a behavior born of ill-intent." Then: "This is a day for justice."

He accepted the gallery's point that a stranger answering a silly picture with its exact latitude and longitude would be funny, on a condition. "I mean yes, but by someone harmless like yourself," he told Charlie. "But Zack would cut me up and put me in a suitcase."

Aura, the snitch named by the defence at 8:36, saw it as a matter of national security: "Yay, this means our nation will be very secure." At 8:52, as the notices went up, Aura declared the war over. "The zack coalition routed. Barbarian scourge quelled."

LATE FOR COURT

Youv arrived at 8:53: "What did he do?" Aura: "Doxxxxxxx. Gave coordinates of fence." Youv: "THATS POSSIBLE?" Then: "Who did I always wanna know the locations of?" Jambe: "Youv is always here to call for his criminal bruhs to be unbanned." Youv: "@grok find this mans home address." And: "@grok write pearl a threatening email so she doesnt interfere." Hugh: "Editors he doesnt mean this." Aura: "He wants the death of the chat. He desires annihilation."

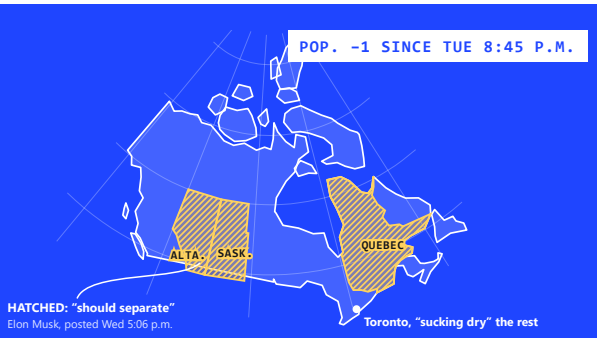
COUNTRY REPORT · CANADA · FRI 2 TO WED 7 OCTOBER

Canada loses its man and its match

It took zack's blood, rationed his nicotine and stuck him in an elevator. Then it lost him, lost a match and heard from Elon Musk.



Zack spent the week explaining Canada to the room, and Canada kept giving him things to explain.

It began on Friday at 3:23 p.m. in the queue for a blood test, which he covered live (below). Aura, who earns "more than 100k cad lets just say that", opened with "Shut up poor idiot." zack: "I'm not poor, I'm just NOT RICH ENOUGH." Did he make 100k himself? "My dad does." Aura: "I always find it funny when children with no concept of money encounter the world." Taliban Chud (B): "Bro is getting his blood taken in Yharnam." Stackhouse: "They're going to strap him down to a gurney and MAID him." Monkey, once the review was in: "Oh you're from Canada. Nvm, yeah, your healthcare is cooked."

On Saturday morning Hugh checked: "Oh so you survived Canadian healthcare then. Sounded like you weren't gonna make it, bud." zack: "Psychologically I didn't." At 12:29 he warned Aura off lying in the grass, because of ticks. Aura: "You already live like you have a debilitating mental and physical disease. What's the difference."

The lion returns

At 9:00 that night Don welcomed him back from his last ban, for the second night running. zack had been back since Thursday. My Name said "Thank you" for him. Aura: "The lion returns." At 9:27 Aura set a foreign policy: "We need to free Canada of zack." Ape agreed: "They can't last much longer." Then: "The cancer must be removed for the host to live."

The host was relieved on Tuesday at 8:45 p.m. (page 4), and the lion left again (page 5). At 10:03 Aura had the other result: "USA defeats Canada. 1-0." Anonymous Johnson: "Of course we did. Idk what at." It was soccer.

HUGH, Petitioner, v. HPCR, Respondent.) No. 10-07-0931 RETRIAL: P(DOOM) Transcript of proceedings, abridged. Wed., Oct. 7, 2026 9:31 a.m. to 10:09 p.m.

APPEARANCES: Hugh, for himself. HPCR, for himself, then by voice, then by nobody. Jere, amicus. Ape, clerk. Comte, chaplain.

9:31 a.m. Hugh posts Alexander's letter to Pinker, "quite brutal."

> 9: You mock us for "pulling probabilities out of thin air" despite knowing better.
> [1,560 px of Pinker's own blurb, quoted back at him]
> Obviously I wouldn't be quoting this paragraph if you weren't the author.

EXHIBIT A

HPCR: Yeah, this is stupid. Assigning probabilities is literally just social signaling and room decorating.

HUGH: Social signalling is a tool for science.

JERE: Performance(doom).

HPCR: This is like trying to assign sentience to crustaceans using probability.

HUGH: What?

HPCR: What's confusing? ... You didn't understand the analogy.

JERE: Maybe 'cause that analogy sucked.

HPCR: The analogy is great. You guys are just stupid. ... It's about policy motivation. Fucking retard.

HUGH: Correct! (Exhibit D.)

HPCR: Go grind your axe on imaginary enemies somewhere else. ... I get that this conversation gets your dick hard or whatever, but I'm not interested in having some imaginary conversation with you.

HUGH: Nice grandstand.

HPCR: Obviously probabilities are useful in all sorts of domains.

HUGH: True! (Exhibit D.)

HPCR 9:50 a.m.: OK, I'm no longer interested in talking with you, as you keep using exclamation points like some dipshit.

HUGH: ... What a retarded reason to disengage. Nice cope.

HPCR: You're too stupid to have a conversation.

HPCR 10:10 a.m.: This is not what I'm saying. You're an idiot. Your brain is so melted by the fact that you have these discourses all day. ... Are you stupid?

COMTE: This anger ultimately makes your life worse. ... No one here is stupid.

HPCR: That's not true.

APE: What is happening? ... The analogy did suck.

HPCR: Explain it. (The clerk does, two ways. Exhibit C.)

APE: Would explaining it correctly or incorrectly show that your analogy sucked?

HPCR: Nope.

HPCR: Yeah, I should use dumber analogies for fifth graders.

HUGH: No. Use smarter ones, rather than this ambiguous slop.

HPCR: Hughes, like an unpaid for Chabot every conversation is a new conversation.

HUGH 10:26 a.m., reading it back: Hughes, like an unpaid for Chabot every conversation is a new conversation.

SYNTH.WAV: Hughes.

To the voice room. Not transcribed. 12:11 p.m.

HPCR: Phone died, whoops.

HUGH: Yeah, thought so. It's all good.

BARDIEL1: Oh, this thing was still going on. Were you able to agree at the end?

JERE 12:34 p.m.: They agreed that AI is an issue. They disagree about the efficacy of the rhetoric.

HPCR 10:02 p.m.: My phone died, but the thing I was saying before I got cut off was absolutely incredible.

APE: I'm sure, I'm sure.

HPCR: I mean, you were being an idiot.

Adjourned. The phone was not recovered.

Court finds the analogy did suck

The p(doom) question went back before the room on Wednesday. A crustacean was entered into evidence and a phone battery settled it.

Hugh mentioned that he likes "working on ads/cft stuff from a hyperbolic geometry angle." Youv, who studies maths, asked where he had learned it. "You won't like this," said Hugh. Youv: "AI created textbook?"

"It sounds like I wanna shit on you," Youv said, "but every time you talk about this stuff, I just go 'what the fuck?'" Hugh rated his own seriousness a 9 out of 10. HPCR's analogy, a rock and a window, drew a verdict from Brutus: "It wasn't a good analogy tbh." Then Youv: "You study something related to cameras right? I forgor the details."

Hugh's degree is in documentary photography. He failed maths A-level, he said, "smoking a lot of weed at the time." At 1:23 he showed his working (Figure 1), extended to a 31,265-gon "using exactly 90,525,801,730 spheres. How do I know this? Well…" The sentence ended in a YouTube link.

Hugh cited Gary Marcus's 2022 essay on deep learning "hitting a wall." Youv: "So a year before LLM's peaked?" Stackhouse: "Studies say AI actually makes programmers less efficient." Youv: "Studies also say it makes programmers impotent." Hugh: "It also makes my dick soft and my wife leave me." At 7:55: "End of scaling is near. Buckmaster just said so." Eleven minutes later: "I was making shit up."

THE PERMANENT UNDERCLASS HEARING · THURSDAY, 5:29 TO 9:28 A.M.

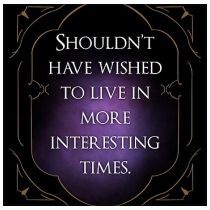
Hands wanted

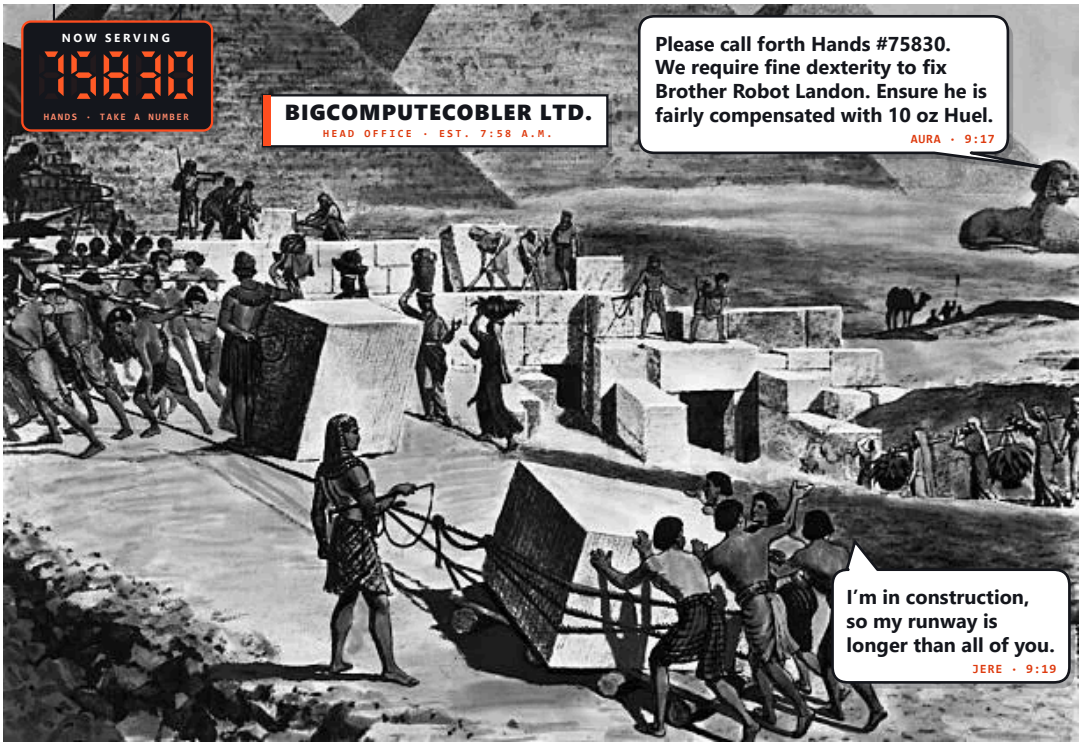
From Ape alone at dawn to a vacancy for Hands #75830, in four hours.

EPIGRAPH

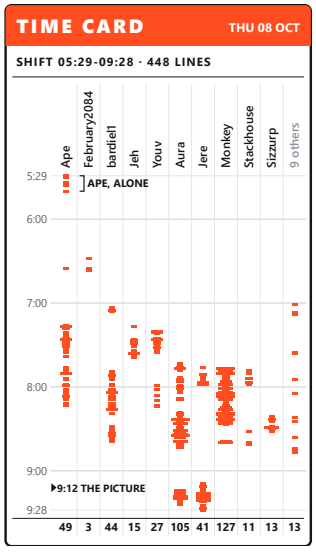
THU 7:32 A.M. Filed by Ape three minutes after he admitted he kind of enjoys watching the end of the world.

PICTURE: APE





THU 9:12 A.M. The permanent underclass, artist's impression. Jere: "they need us to drill the screws." In the bubbles, Aura at 9:17 and Jere at 9:19; the firm is Ape's, from 7:58. PICTURE: JERE



Every line of the hearing, punched at its minute. Ape clocked in at 5:29 and worked the first shift alone.

"We literally need to teach children how to be monkeys again."

MONKEY, THU 8:21 A.M.

Ape opened the hearing at 5:29 on Thursday morning, to an empty room. What would the proletariat exchange for cheaper, better AI healthcare, he asked, "if not their labour?" At 5:36 he read the charge: "You motherfuckers will make permanent underclass memes and then seemingly forget about the legitimate threat of such a caste system 10 minutes later."

Nobody answered for 48 minutes. Then February2084 arrived with a platform: "UBI but government gives u tokens so ur AI makes money for u." Ape, taking it more seriously than it was offered, proposed a "universal basic stake in AI infrastructure."

Jeh then cross-examined the doomer, having promised "no data backing up any of my points." How did Ape imagine AI doom coming about? "With incredible detail and accuracy." Jeh raised Y2K, when "experts came out in drones to talk about it." Ape found that Jeh was "doing the thing where he acts intentionally retarded to hide the fact he's actually retarded." iris: "Hey..... leave him alone."

Stackhouse, at 7:48: "AI = nothingburger." Nine minutes later he had accepted he might never do meaningful work, at least as a vocation. Monkey: "Fuck that, tbh."

Jere argued the future underclass would have cheaper everything, "in effect, they'd be what's middle class today," and that machines might pay "10k dollars" for an hour's conversation. Monkey: "More like 10k bolívars." Ape: the worker "will just get outbid by BIGCOMPUTECOBLER LTD."

bardiel1 proposed a sovereign wealth fund, then "UUBI 2060 UN world government." Monkey: "Ok, Klaus Schwab. You will eat ze bugs." bardiel1: "Fuck yes." Monkey: "Fuck no. I'll raise my own cows then, goddamit." Joker rick, in his only line of the day: "Y'all own nothin' and be happy."

Jere reached the bottom at 9:11: "Let's hope there are enough mines out there for everyone on earth to work in." Then, "get ready for this amazing take": the AI "will be smart enough to put us to work efficiently." Jere put in for the walled garden; Aura, "and me by association." One more would cost nothing, Jere reasoned, "like when you win the lottery, you're willing to give 10k to that one family member you never talk to."

At 9:29 Simon moved the floor to robot girlfriends, page 16.

FIG. 1 · IQ DOMINANCE, as commissioned by My Name, Tue 4:44 p.m. Bar: the range a chatter's chatbot gave. Dot: its single guess (hollow: a second machine). Diamond: a real test. Curve: everybody else, mean 100, SD 15, as the scale is defined.

Stackhouse opened the census at 4:24 p.m. with a prompt to paste, ending "You have to make a genuine guess." Charlie was "embarrassed to even ask. It's gonna judge me for asking a retarded question."

vannak proposed an IQ test app. Charlie: "Waste of tokens. Just assume you're a sub-105 retard and move on." zack called his machine a glazer: "Telling you 'yeah, you're retarded' would definitely be bad for business." Aura's theory was a "psychological minimum," the "lowest number it could respond that wouldn't make you feel like doing something drastic. Like when your mom says 'you're handsome to me.'"

February2084 asked his for "less words, more profile format" and got 135, with ten out of ten for cross-domain synthesis. Aura, 9:33 p.m.: "Everyone's a genius but cancer isn't solved. Curious."

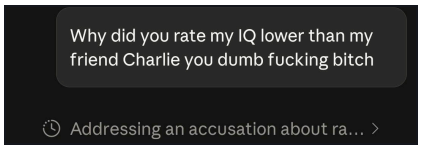
At 6:03 next morning Quigley wrote, "Interesting how everyone pretty much gets the same range." He undersold it. Exactly one number sits inside all six ranges, 125, and the seven single guesses average 124.6.

My Name asked for "a scatter plot in the next paper showing my iq dominance." Claude puts him third, ChatGPT last.

The appeal

TUE 4:27 TO 4:29 P.M.

"That's because you ask it nerdy stemcel shit," Stackhouse said of Charlie's 127, and took it to the machine.



TUE 4:28 P.M. "I didn't compare you to Charlie." PICTURE: STACKHOUSE

Charlie: "Why are you being mean." Stackhouse: "Claude knows I'm being performative." Then Charlie's own chatbot ruled for the appellant: "Honestly, Stack has a point." It found that "CUDA kernels and Deleuze read as 'high IQ' on the page," and called Stackhouse's score "a noisy guess that feels like a ranking."

The order for the chart came at the end of 74 minutes on who dates whom.

Simon held that all men would choose to be gay "if there were no social prejudices," and that gay couples match on looks: "It's skill based matchmaking." Straight couples don't. "Straight men are uglier on average."

Bedbug, new to the room, took the other side. "They make up for it with money." Stackhouse ruled from the gallery: "Bro doesn't know about hypergamy. Laughable."

"I see 7 psl HTNs with beckies bud," said Bedbug, and when Simon doubted his eye: "I do because I'm not gay." Simon: "It's because you're not gay that you don't." Bedbug filed the whole of the science in one message, from "women aren't a mystery" to "have money and buy her shit occasionally."

Simon's exhibit: a friend who left a 9/10 for a 4/10, who then left her. "Based chud," said Bedbug. "He knew." Simon: "Her only fault was being beautiful."

MARKET NOTE Jere's crossover, as described at 9:47. No figures were given.

THE SALE · THU 9:29 TO 10:03 A.M.

Simon opened at 9:29 a.m. with a forecast: AI robot girlfriends would not be the end of humanity, though "I wouldn't be surprised if like, 30% of the population go for it." Status they could never copy. "There is no challenge in getting a hot AI gf."

HPCR dissented: "People anthropomorphize clouds. People will get emotionally attached to pencils." Aura took the long view. "It's so weird to be unironically talking about this shit. I grew up with dial up internet ffs."

Jere, who at 9:40 had ruled that "these things aren't taken seriously in the Everything Is Fake Club," took them seriously a minute later. "We'll get some AIs to be very choosy," he said. "It'll be like watches. Rolexes will be made, and the lower quality brands will parrot them in different price levels."

Simon was skeptical. "Like how would it even work? You can only purchase it if you win it over?" Aura corrected his pronoun: "Her, Simon. It is a her. Don't be a bigot." Simon: "Same thing."

PRE-OWNED · 9:47 A.M.

The AI gf of Theseus

"Y'all buying refurbished/used robo gfs or nah," asked Aura. Simon: "Are you saying a woman is less valuable because of how many men she's been with?" Aura: "Bro goes to the used section in the sex shop." Jeh: "Yes. Key lock dynamics."

Jere, 9:49: "AI gf of Theseus. All those parts are modular."

AFTER-SALES · 9:53 TO 10:03 A.M.

Why do we love

"Have you even read Nietzsche," Jeh asked. Jere: "Oh I've read him baby." Jeh: "Jere why do we love. Is it to reaffirm ourselves in the hurt we know follows." Jere: "Some childhood holdover. Men yearn for mom but she isn't mom, she's just some girl."

Jeh: "Freud vs Bataille. Fight." He took Bataille, "full well knowing this is gonna be the next Titanic." Jere, 10:02: "We want dissolution when we're whole, but when we're whole we want dissolution." His cure, at 10:03: "Wait until we're older."

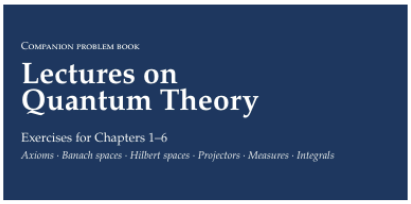
THE CENSUS · THE BILL · SUNDAY 4 OCTOBER, AND THE WEEK AROUND IT

Insanely much tokens???

Youv worried that one problem book would cost Hugh a fortune. Then the room opened its usage pages. The bill, itemised on a log scale and priced in problem books.



SUN 3:40 P.M. "Here's the first draft of the cover." The finished book is this page's unit of account: 1 PB. PICTURE: HUGH

Youv had been ghosted. On Saturday at 2:58 p.m. he complained that Schuller's lectures on quantum theory come with no exercises ("What a fucking bum") and that Schuller, emailed, was "literally stone walling me."

On Sunday at 3:15 he went to Hugh. "I need your tokens. Give me your tokens. Don't be so stingy."

By 3:38 Hugh's machine had "used 2% of my 5hr," and tokens, he announced, "are so cheap now." At 3:48 Youv read a sample: "Hoollyyy, that looks aaaccctuallllyyy really good." What would the whole book cost? "One more prompt." So far, said Hugh, 157,000 tokens.

"That sounds like… a big number."

"Not rlly."

At 4:02 Hugh ordered the whole book, solutions in, and Youv lost his nerve. "YOOOO WTFFF, isnt that insanely much tokens???" HPCR: "Youv realizing what AI is."

It came at 4:23: 21 chapters, 93 pages, 170 exercises, 444,880 tokens, a stub of a bar on the bill opposite. Hugh: "np."

On Thursday at 7:20 a.m. he ran out of tokens of his own. "I was about to go to the toilet but then I ran out of tokens. What do I do now?" Ape: "Pray." Youv: "Just pissed myself. Anyway."

The hearing opened at 12:58 p.m. on Saturday with a clerical question. "What's willows @ again?" asked Harpo. At 1:01 he filed the motion: could Willow "supply me reading material you would give to royal if he asked?" Royal, a voice chatter who by Hugh's account "insists on misunderstanding willow," was not in the room. Neither was she. The court sat anyway.

HPCR prosecuted. "Willow has read like 4 philosophers and that's it." Harpo: "Isn't that all of them?" HPCR: "If you ask her she'll say yes." The defence was no help. "Willow explains, just poorly," said Hugh, and bossOnothin testified that she is the reason he will never read Deleuze.

At 1:21 Jere entered the economics: "Understanding her is costly and this is just sunk cost." At 1:24 HPCR read out the charge. "The reason you are weird is because you decided it would be really cool to become one of her disciples," he said, and summed up: "So cringe." Was he high, Jere asked. "Yeah, why."

Hugh said he just liked her vibe and her ideas. HPCR: "You adopted all her views, however poorly you understand them." By 1:36 he had mellowed into a reading of his own: "She enjoys the game. It's a social performance."

Marxist objects to ‘capital’

Lost in voice chat, the capital case was retried by text after midnight. Hugh went to bed, Willow ruled, a purge was drafted, and the bench slept.

The first hearing was held in voice chat, where the paper keeps no stenographer. The only record is dot’s, filed at 12:43 a.m. Saturday: “Sizz wanted to be very classical Marxist and say capitalism is solely a human venture; Hugh Willow and Charlie naturally said that’s not how it works.”

Sizzurp appealed at 12:44. “I asked numerous times for clarity and I did not receive it. And I got angry. And told them to not use terms like ‘capital’ to explicate the view.”

“Oh no! The hyperobject is complicated!” said Hugh. Later, for the record: “Marxist complains about usage of capital in discussion about what capital is lol. Epic.”

Had Sizzurp been confused? He clarified in capitals: “I WAS CONFUSED AS TO WHAT WAS BEING SAID BUT I WASNT CONFUSED IN THE SENSE THAT I WASNT UNDERSTANDING WHAT WAS CLEARLY BEING EXPRESSED.” dot posted the cat.

At 12:51 Sizzurp said he could have explained Hugh’s view “better than you.” At 12:52 he laid down the law, and in the same minute amended it.

Now what you can say is this: well yes, capital is stipulated this way by Marx and is understood in that tradition as a more comprehensive or sophisticated development out of classical political economy’s conception of capital BUT what is more important is a certain kind of process that capital in this tradition isn’t merely defined as but shares a feature with and our view is that this feature is actually, in a certain sense, ‘more fundamental’ and of more analytical importance with respect to a certain analytical agenda.

At 1:01 Hugh rose. “I’m going to bed. Write an essay about it after you’ve engaged with the arguments ok ily x.” Charlie, in his only words of the day, entered a brief: “Cum bagel.”

The ruling

Willow, a defendant in the first hearing, ruled at 1:05 unasked. “The issue isn’t with any stipulated definition,” she wrote; the definition failed the world. “The phenomena of capital out in the world is not captured by it.” At 1:07, the second half: “And also it fails to capture capital as written about by Marx.”

Contempt

“None of this conflicts with what I just said you stupid retard,” Sizzurp told dot at 1:10. dot: “Again: reading comprehension issue. Some grow out of this. Some do not. I pray for you buddy.” Sizzurp: “Go back to reading Land. And consult Willow for more gibberish enlightenment. The idiocy is uncanny.”

Wednesday, 4:03 p.m.: a newcomer posts the paper that disproves moral realism. Chat referees it live. He has not posted since.

ABSTRACT AS POSTED, 4:03 P.M.

I wrote this paper that disproves moral realism. [1]
The core logic goes like this:

P1 You ought to die. [2]
P2 I ought not to die. [3]
P3 P1 and P2 are contradictory; therefore, if P1 is true, P2 must be false. [4]
P4 There is no contradiction or irrationality entailed by P2 itself.
C Therefore, P1 cannot be established merely by asserting that P2 is false; an independent argument is needed to show why P2 cannot rationally be maintained. [5]

I really don't see any way ought of this for moral realists. [6]

DEFINITION, 4:32 Axiom is something that is always true, i.e. objective. [7]

KEYWORDS ought · LNC · LOI · a priori · the Flood · bro

The author posted his premises, a link and an invitation: "If you think i'm wrong i'd love to hear your thoughts." Chat obliged for forty-nine minutes; he wrote 83 messages, Simon 52.

At 4:05 HPCR had referred it to Sizzurp, Ape and Youv: "honestly this may not be the best place." Ape never came. Youv went to Room C. Sizzurp came, and told HPCR: "If you ever @ me for dumb shit like this again I'll have Charlie send you nudes." Simon: "Trust me they are not pretty." HPCR had not read any of it. "Sort of a bonus for me that I wasted your time."

At 4:07 the author noted that this is "peer-reviewed paper." Simon: "I do not care." Sizzurp, 4:18: "timebag how high are you rn. Be honest." No answer.

At 4:26 the Flood came up: "if i'm right God was false in doing that." HPCR: "It was just the Middle East I think." The author: "Allah akbar."

At 4:33 the author brought in Kant: "Kant calls this a priori." Simon: "Bro has to be trolling." Definitions followed (refs. 1, 2). At 4:34 Simon checked its standing: "Peer reviewed paper he apparently wrote btw." Then the headline.

At 4:42 Simon got there. "Ohhhhhh I understand what ur saying now." His last message, at 4:49: "A, B and C believe they ought to kill D."

Intentionalism is over, I think (the strong thesis at least)

THESIS, 12:12 P.M.: "The meaning of a text or what someone says IS their intention." Simon: "a terrible theory on the surface."

Jere[2] RECEIVED 12:01 p.m. ("I figured it out") ACCEPTED 12:10 p.m. by Hugh ("you did it buddy") CLOSED 3:01 p.m. [Citation Needed]

Jere announced at 12:01 that he had figured it out. Simon asked what intentionalism was; Hugh, before the answer came: "you did it buddy." Jere then suggested Simon convert anyway, since radical intentionalism "sounds very Simon coded"; Hugh: "of course he'd take the extremal dumbass take." Rem recommended Putnam (ref. 1).

The examples are in Table 1. Around them dot asked where Jere's "Wilde side" had gone ("Hp has killed your soul"), and Hugh held that "all meaning is intelligible for those with ears to hear it." dot: "Ableist." Hugh: "Its not a fault that you dont have a body to feel the earths hum." Aura offered "meaning may do anything bottom text," then "its an illusion bottom text." Simon: "It is ofc."

Aura told Simon he was "committed to running with the dumbest possible interpretations of any given thing." Jere described himself as "the discourse detective doctor surgeon. Famous for understanding people in just the right way." Brutus: "Too bad nobody can understand me." Aura: "except women." Jere: "Them most of all. I use my social strata position of powerful man to give them a voice ofc."

Asked at 1:29 whether he reads art for the artist's intention, Jere said "Intention all the way tbh, anything else is cope lmao," then: "Joke."

WED 12:58 P.M. Fig. 1. A cloud that forms a word, posted while Simon's clouds were before the seminar. Jere had ruled at 12:35 that "clouds aren't intentional." The plane is drawn in by the editors. PICTURE: MY NAME

Kiss my ant

Wednesday, 11:04 p.m.: Brutus says machine intelligence will show itself the day it stops taking orders. Hugh asks what intelligence is. By midnight the room has built a ladder out of everything that might qualify. On Friday it adds the bees.

XI Stops taking orders

Brutus, Wed 11:04 p.m.: the true sign of machine intelligence is "when it stops taking our direction." Hugh, Thu 10:32 a.m., half agreeing: "Sorry if I was mean yesterday. It's an interesting convo."

X Humans

At 11:20 p.m. Brutus allowed that "Ants ARE intelligent." At 11:34: "I don't think anything on earth is intelligent but us rn." Hugh: "Anthropocentrism is a mind-disease." Meliorne: "I might be." Ape: "I'm a human supremacist because it's way more badass to develop intelligence by accident while living off pond water and fending off hyenas."

IX Dolphins, with thumbs

Meliorne, 11:40 p.m.: "If we gave dolphins the ability to walk on land. Talk. And thumbs. Would they be intelligent?" Monkey: "Maybe they won't elect mayors but who the fuck knows what they could build and call it a civilization."

VIII The colony

Meliorne, 11:20 p.m.: "Ants are not intelligent. The colony is intelligent." Hugh: "Society has always been superintelligent." Does a colony have experience? HPCR, 12:49 a.m.: "No. No they don't." Stackhouse: "Then why can't my top lane stop feeding and why does my jungle never gank me."

VII Ants

Thunderstud, 11:19 p.m.: "We should aspire to the mighty ant." Ape wondered whether Meliorne was "making a fucking god tier connection... or he's just saying things." Meliorne: "Kiss my ant." An ant, he ruled, is "10 if-then statements maximum. On loop." HPCR, 12:41 a.m.: "Who said ants aren't smart?" Hugh: "Brutus."

VI Bees

OkPhilosopher, Fri 2:12 p.m.: quantum phenomena "explains how bees know where to go and stuff like that." HPCR: "I feel like you think bees really detect quarks." Aura: "HP just can't accept the fact that bees are more quarky than him."

V Computers

Nobody calls a regular computer intelligent, Brutus said at 11:21 p.m. Hugh: "A computer used to be a room full of human beings doing calculations." Brutus: "Did anyone call those rooms of people intelligent?" Hugh: "Only if they were white women." Then: "Smart televisions... Apple intelligence."

IV If/then statements

Meliorne, 11:23 p.m.: "Do you consider if/then statements from python code as a form of intelligence?" Brutus: "A complex-enough arrangement of them maybe." Monkey: "While true: Get more intelligent()."

III The sun

Hugh, 11:24 p.m.: "The sun is incredibly complex." Brutus: "Stop. Did I say it was? No." Hugh: "Are you retarded?" Brutus: "No, you clearly are." Ape: "Gentlemen, gentlemen. You're both retarded."

II Rocks

Cock volume — Determination by water displacement —

> SIZZURP · THURSDAY 4:13 P.M.

> PINNED BY REQUEST · Monkey, 4:29 p.m.: "Editors this is an important admission, please pin it somewhere in the next issue."

Introduction

One specimen was declared, by Comte at 4:48: "Halfway is the furthest I can get inside soft." And: "I am a tragic sexual Pagliacci, bringing pleasure to others while not receiving it myself." One operator, Hugh, measured it twice. At 4:49: "2.3cm. Mogged. Sorry for all the typos. Sent from my iPhone." The owner replied that he had "sperm unironically larger", kept in an aquarium by his bed. At 4:51: "41mm x2 = 81mm = 8.2 cm." The two results differ by a factor of 3.6, and this document was proposed the same minute.

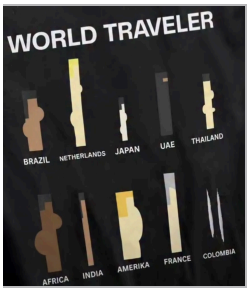
NOTE 1 41 × 2 = 82.

NOTE 2 Aura, at 4:33, had found the declarant already blocked: "Past me seems to have been onto sumn."

1 Scope

This document specifies a method for the determination of cock volume, which in the proposer's words "should really be the standard cock measurement". Aura, dissenting, called the proposal "length copium".

2 Normative references



The following document is indispensable for the application of this one.

THU 1:10 A.M. WORLD TRAVELER (T-shirt, black, ten countries, Brazil first). Submitted by dot with the question "Should I cop." Monkey: "Why is it in English and it says amerika." dot: "Bc they're kafkan. Obviously." Monkey: "Pretty cringe shirt." PICTURE: DOT

NOTE Monkey: "It's about filling it up." Hugh: "Your mom especially."

3.2 becquer: a graduated vessel. [SOURCE: MONKEY, 4:52 P.M.]

3.4 average: of a specimen, "average all around"; of the proposer's own, "brazilian average tho". [SOURCE: MONKEY, 4:55 P.M.]

4 Principle

"Just dip your cock in a becquer," Monkey said at 4:52. "Measure the water displacement." The volume displaced is the volume of the test piece. "Do it like in biology class days."

5 Apparatus

5.1 Becquer, graduated, of a capacity at the operator's discretion. See Figure 1.

6 Calculation

6.1 The cylinder formula shall not be used. Hugh proposed it at 4:53 ("Bros never heard of pi(r)^2"). Monkey: "Nah, it's not a perfect cylinder." Simon: "Speak for yourself."

NOTE At the same minute Comte asked: "Guys how would you recommend removing a cylinder from my bed frame." No method was adopted.

7 Expression of results

Results shall be expressed "like BMI," the proposer said at 4:53, in answer to the dissent, "where like, there are exceptions." Hugh: "Ok this is too far." See Figure 2.

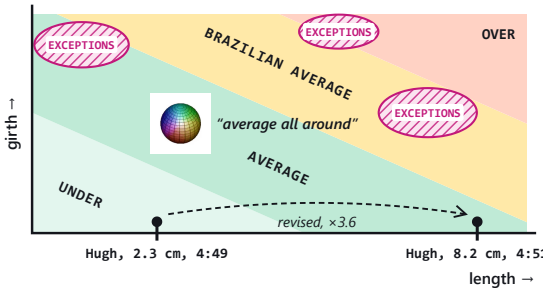

Figure 2 — Classification of results, after BMI. No thresholds were set. Only Hugh's two readings are to scale. SPHERE: SIMON, 4:55 P.M.

The judge entered the admission pinned above, then turned it on Monkey: "So we're in this together." Monkey: "Cite 3 examples." He did not accuse anyone else of being a queer, he said, then named three exceptions. Comte: "Why Simon?"

Monkey's counterclaim, 4:38: "What is more gay indicative than being a lion in text and being a pussycat in vc." Under cross-examination: "I spent 2 years in vc. Only because of coke I could do it."

The bench, 4:41: "I'm so straight I can freely advertise that I'd fuck a hot trans woman. Like that's just heterosexuality ascended to its highest summit." Hugh: "Bunch of people who never had sex discussing who's gay and who isn't."

Digleb v. resputin

In re Luigi

PHIL CHAT · MON 5 OCT 2026 · OPENED 2:06, FIRST HEARD 2:59, ROSE 3:46 P.M.

COUNSEL resputin (32 lines, his whole week) for M4A; Digleb (28) for the chief executive. ALSO HEARD Jere 54, Aura 54, My Name 25, Brutus 24, Monkey 19, Quigley 14.

Health insurance — Chief executive shot dead — Whether he deserved it — Whether credited with the lives his company paid for — Pascal's Health Insurance Claim — Whether a vaccine.

Held: Luigi would have spent his time better advocating for M4A.

RESPUTIN, 3:20 P.M. · AURA: "WHY DIDNT HE THINK OF THAT"

JUDGMENT Digleb opened at 2:06 p.m.: if the United Healthcare chief executive was responsible for the people his company's denials killed, was he not also responsible for the millions it paid for? Nobody answered for 53 minutes. My Name, at 2:59: "Id imagine the UNH CEO denied a few serial killers." Aura: "Have we considered how many malaria nets Epstein installed."

resputin held that the man did not deserve to die, then spent fourteen minutes on why it was not that simple, and at 3:15 conceded the other half: "I don't think he did a bad thing on balance though. I just don't think it really helped anything." My Name: "Oh this is just Pascal's Health Insurance Claim." Aura: "They denied grampa's claim so we have to put him down tomorrow. If only he spent more time advocating for M4A."

Asked whether he paid his own bills, Digleb said: "No, because of the Wonderful ACA I am on my parents insurance for a few more months." Aura: "Got it thanks."

LATE SUBMISSIONS My Name: "Killing someone is always about accountability. Wrong place. Wrong time." Quigley: "Luigi is a straight up loser. I said it."

SUBSEQUENT HISTORY Tuesday, Digleb, from another server: "Update, I got banned for calling them pussies for not wanting to debate their stance."

Gemini 4 Argon came out on Wednesday afternoon. Hugh's first review was "oo its smart," though he had not yet seen it do anything. "Google, kill this user," said Youv, and when Aura went to ask Claude about the new guy, Youv sent her the form instead.

Thunderstud had decided by 6:02 p.m. (left). Monkey gave the model a week before the nerf, and read out the launch post: Argon goes first, without guardrails, to "trusted cyber defenders." "When McAfee becomes the virus," he said. "Googles trusted cyberdefenders: the CIA."

"Google will never be on a comeback," Thunderstud said. "Wrong leaders. CEO is bad." At 6:57 he said he fucking hated the company and listed what he gave up. Aura: "He casts doubt on the gods..."

Youv reviewed the boycott: "If you don't use chrome and gmail, youre a contrarian pedophile." Outlook, Thunderstud pointed out, is free email. "Bro is on outlook," said Youv. "CALLED IT." Monkey took Helium for a copy of Arc with vertical tabs, which Thunderstud does not use. "Use more windows," he advised, "or be more mentally stable and use less tabs." Chrome "uses all the RAM."

His theory of design arrived at 7:31: "This is why you don't let engineering nerds design shit. Zero taste." Itatchi The Frog blamed designers who outsource their thinking to AI, and Thunderstud agreed that AI "should just be doing work."

At 2:47 the next morning it did some. "lmao anyone else want better discord?" By 5:06 he had six Discords in one window. At 5:17: "finally. i can die happy. i did it myself." Hugh: "me when claude one shots multi-window discord." synth.wav asked about the RAM usage.

"I should check," said Thunderstud.

Monkey does not invest. Wednesday the 30th, 8:47 p.m.: "You think I'm investing? I bondmaxx." The bond pays 14%, more on good credit, against inflation of "4%ish". A second pays 28%, but "they only allow like 5k on it."

"Should be illegal," said My Name. "I would do things for that rate."

The other side of the ledger: Brazilian cards charge 12% a month, "and the poors think credit card is free money." My Name posted the American 19.25% and called 12% "a godsend". At 8:52 Monkey gave the yearly figure, 450%, then the headline. The desk's working is on the board.

dot claimed 7% on an 850 score. "Credit unions." Aura, at 9:29, found the whole field "worthless".

My Name charted the rest of the evening. "If only my parents knew to buy bonds in the early 80s, I wouldn't have needed to become a schizophrenic economist." The 30-year had beaten the S&P since '92. Monkey: "Hell of a bet for 92."

The arcade opened at 2:28 p.m. on Wednesday, when Brutus asked who else liked typing. "I need other scores to mog." HPCR said 113. "Very precise," said Brutus. "And stable. Impressive."

"I just guessed," said HPCR.

Brutus posted a 152, Jere a 74.

By Thursday night there was a game: rules by Claude, stages by Gemini, monsters by Grok until its free limit ran out. Jere asked why anyone would type past 75 words a minute. "Decadent." Thunderstud said faster prompting. "TTS," said Jere. "And then Neural link. Friction is over."

Aura, in the crypt: "turns out i cant type when im getting attacked by a bat."

For the leaderboard, Claude proposed filing every score as a GitHub issue. "Is Claude stupid," Brutus asked, and checked with ChatGPT, which said it was fine. Monkey, who later said he had just logged on (he had been posting since 8:47), explained databases until 11:40 p.m. Brutus ended it. "Oh yeah well claude already implemented it. So fuck you idiot loser."

"Going to sleep angry, big mistake," said Jere. "Hash it out."

On Friday bossOnothin, on a harder setting at 74 words a minute, beat Stackhouse at 89. Brutus beat both. "Cooked so hard they had to change the game," said bossOnothin.

On Thursday Aura put Jere at 10 words a minute. Jere proposed an industrial policy: "We need the Japanese to innovate."

Sizzurp set out the day at 12:37 p.m. on Thursday: go to work, come home, eat ice cream, chocolate chip mint and cookies and cream. "I'm skraighttttt." Pizza joined the plan a minute later, pepperoni only, and then a pilgrimage: the $60 Ceres pie in New York, which Dave Portnoy scored, as Sizzurp remembered it, "a 9-4 or a 9-5."

Jere countered with the $1.50 pizza.

"Yeah true but I can't ignore greatness when it places normative demands on me," said Sizzurp.

"That's confusing because I put normative demands on you all the time and you ignore my greatness."

"I don't perceive them. I perceive your undesirabilities."

"You're a pretty awful person," said Jere. "I mean. All due respect."

At 12:48 Aura took the meat off the pie and Jere crossed the floor: "Pepperoni eaters often act like children." synth.wav reviewed the pitch instead of the pizza. "You're losing at least half your audience right there bruh. Probably more. You might appeal to the cheese loyalists."

Then Awesomebillfromdawsonville asked whether they meant the pizza or the drink, and lunch became the bar.

LAST ORDERS

Aura is "a cocktail man in 2026": a bar cart, a girlfriend who "makes good shit," and no patience for anyone without Cointreau. "No st germain? lmfao bruh." Jere: "IPAs are deep trash, i've learned. Sewer slime."

Jere's trouble is pace. Thrown out of a bar once for not ordering enough, Jere watches the clock, and ordering more means going "past the point of no return." Aura had the diagnosis. "Mom Beat ur Ass for taking too long to finish ur apple juice. Ever since then its been prisoner drinking behavior." Jere: "I've sculpted myself from the rugged marble of my traumatic upbringing pretty well, but a few remnants remain."

Jambe's only line of the day came at 1:49: "I feel like jeh has become an alcoholic ever since he broke up with that gf he knew for like 2 weeks then was gonna marry" (the engagement is on page 16). "He was an alcoholic before that dw," said Aura. Jeh replied with the napkin: the first symptom of alcoholism is denial, "that means I'm in the clear."

COMMUNION

Quigley reached the featherweight line at 2:39 p.m. "My fellow brother in Christ." Jere: "If i had the chance to have but one droplet, even then i would be unworthy." Quigley: "And yet, even with all this God-eating, you're still a chud. Chud Thomas."

SPECIMEN OF THE WEEK

So tight

Brutus put Vesalius on a microscope slide. The room did not reply.

Monday, 6:14 p.m. Brutus posted three photographs of a glass slide labelled “Andreas Vesalius Portrait”, which holds the woodcut printed as Plate 1 of the book underneath, and two words: “So tight.” At 6:29 p.m. came a fourth, the slide on that book beside a steel ruler. Every number on this figure comes off that ruler.

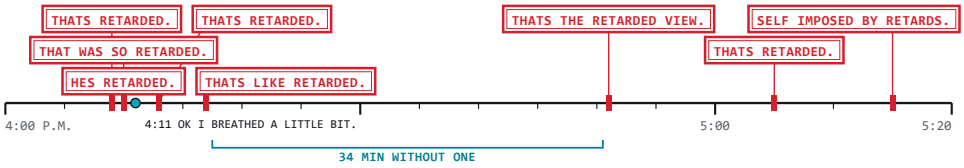
8 IN 66 MIN · 5 TO OKPHILOSOPHER, 3 TO HUGH



Dear My Name,

A quant is just a slave that does math and is fed well, not good. I will be the one in control, like own the rights, build something of my own, have a legacy. I know the Black-Scholes equation. Isn't that enough for stocks? Any finance 101 resources you would like to recommend?

— SNAIL, I SUPPOSE OKPHILOSOPHER, 20 · FRI 4:11 TO 4:50 P.M.

ANSWERED THE SAME MINUTE "Pick a lane. Gambler or snail."

The correspondent chose snail, which was wrong. "That's the retarded view. So here's the first question. How do you buy something that cannot go any lower?"

How much finance did Epstein know? "Zero. He bought properties." Aura asked where to put the money: "In my pocket." Half an hour later, having found the Bear Stearns story, "Ding ding ding. You're as smart as Epstein."

"I have 0 finance knowledge man," OkPhilosopher admitted. "I don't know what money is tbh." The reply: "You can teach a quantum physicist finance but you cannot teach a banker quantum physics."

At 5:05 he proposed a linear regression. Retarded. The alternative was a company with 70M in cash and 10M in liabilities, offered at 30M: "70 − 10 = 60. 60 > 30. Buy. I just need 30M to start." Finance's abstractions, the desk ruled at 5:15, are "self imposed by retards."

Dear Monkey,

Practically I am having a quarter life crisis. Man, it's like Zucc started Facebook at 19. Steve Jobs started Apple at 20.

— QUARTER-LIFE CRISIS, 20 OKPHILOSOPHER · THU 12:13 TO 12:37 A.M.

ON CALL 46 MIN · ANSWERED AT LENGTH "Literally take Elsa's advice. Let it go. Saved you thousands in therapy." The programme: "Go do some sport. Find a hobby. Make friends. Give it 5 years you won't give a fuck anymore." On Zuckerberg: "Stop comparing. Go do BJJ and realize how fragile everything is and then laugh at it, cause a 60-year-old can choke you out effortlessly." At 12:46: "Stop soying out and take Elsa's advice. Maybe read some existencialismo idk."

SECOND OPINIONS

Hugh, 12:16 a.m.: "Don't listen to Monkey, he's a proto-neo-fascist-misanthrope-chud-celerationist."

Stackhouse, 12:35: "You will live in the pod. Eat bugs. Have no possessions. NO bitches. Enjoy." OkPhilosopher: "This guy gets it."

Dear Jeh,

Yo, so my life has fallen apart in the last 48 hours. I crashed my car, I lost my job... I'm not going to make it big bro. Can I ... sleep under your staircase?

— NOT GOING TO MAKE IT BIG, BRO FENCEJUMPER · TUE 6:20 P.M.

ANSWERED IN 33 MIN "Sure buddy, just be sure to sweep under there." FenceJumper: "I love you. In a totally homosexual and platonic way." Then, "You don't understand, this is serious." Jeh: "This looks totally real yes." That evening the room had other business with FenceJumper (page 1).

On the worship of chicken

Does God love bacteria more? I used to think if aliens visited us, they'd recognize all of our infrastructure was created for the cultivation and worship of chicken. Our highways are for delivering chicken. We have more temples for chicken than churches.

We make things that aren't chicken in the likeness and flavor of chicken. They are numerous and all of our systems: chicken. We walk in the shadows of the ancients of chickens, whom we use as our fuel.

But with the Siberia plague thing, I think he really does play favourites. I'm on the side of God. Rooting for you, little guy.

Do we believe there is such a thing as a single source of truth? Or is truth always just out of reach, shaped by who remembers it, who records it, and who survives to tell it?

History, after all, is written by the winners. Memory edits itself. A tree falls in the forest and no one hears it, but it still fell, I think...

Maybe truth isn't malleable at all. But we are.

The Epistle of Comte to HPCR

WEDNESDAY · VERSES BY THE CLOCK

10:13 If Hugh or anyone else in this discord truly is stupid and unreasonable, what purpose does it serve to be angry at them?
10:14 It may briefly feel good in the moment to insult someone but ultimately it truly makes you less happy as a person.
10:17 Those who insult others online are coming from a place of feeling weak.
10:23 Arguing with someone online gives you strong emotions that let you forget about your life, like drugs.

The text, 10:12, on Hugh: "Then that is his cross to carry." At 10:19 he told Hugh he only wanted him "to be happy and at peace." Hugh, the same minute: "I'm sat with my doge rn bruh, I'm at peace." The trial: page 8.

BRIEFS · THE REST OF THE WEEK

The horse of suspicion

Everything else the week said, a line or two at a time: the night shift, the blank that brought the house down, a ring and a shirt.

15 ITEMS · 33 VOICES

WED 3:56 A.M. Drawn from Yohannes's description, which ran to four words.

TUE 6 – WED 7 OCT · OVERNIGHT

The night shift

2:09 February2084 "Buh, my GPT is hung. But not like a horse. Like stalled."

2:11 Brutus answers the chicken sermon (page 34).

2:29 Thunderstud "Steer it."

3:19 My Name posts a horse, looking.

3:56 Yohannes "The horse of suspicion."

4:01 Melan "Could 'I want to want to' be considered consent?"

2 H 2 MIN · NOBODY

6:04 Quigley, on February2084's book: "I got about halfway through and then stopped, mostly due to the practicum."

6:06 Quigley, four hours late, to the hung GPT: "Like a jury."

6:50 February2084 "What sorta cum?"

7:21 synth.wav "More like metaconsent."

7:23 Melan "So is it a metarape then?"

7:25 synth.wav "I wouldn't go that far."

7:25 February2084 "I want to want to go that far."

Nobody answered the horse. It was one of four things Yohannes said all week, and the only one said at night.

Ice cold

Bedbug, to Simon: "You judge men's attractiveness from the perspective of a gay man. You're projecting your gay desire. I don't. I'm ice cold. Bedbug: "A gay man is still a man."

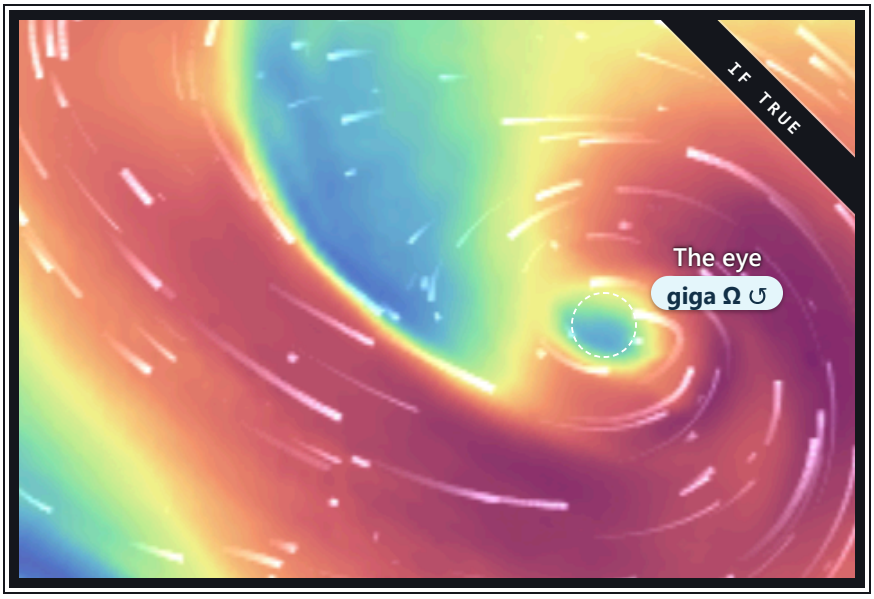
Hugh, Who Put Error Bars on Doom, Dies at [AGE]



WED 1:20 P.M. The cause of death, photographed in advance. Aura posted the map with "what if this turns into a giga omega hurricane and kills hugh." Coastlines withheld, in the spirit of the week (page 1). The wind chip is ours, in the map's own style.

PICTURE: AURA · CROP AND CHIP: THE DESK

Hugh, a photographer who does hyperbolic geometry for fun (page 9) and puts the chance of the world ending at fifty percent, give or take forty (page 7), died on [DATE] in [PLACE WITHHELD] (see page 1). He was [AGE].

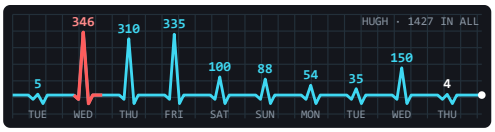
The cause was a giga omega hurricane, in the forecast Aura posted at 1:20 p.m. on Wednesday, Sept. 30. Hugh answered with a sweating emote, and three minutes after the forecast he ordered this obituary, with one condition: "editors write my eulogy if true." It is being held until true.

The mourners were ready early. Brutus said he would be like "Damn, fr?" Jere said he would be like "Fuck my 200 inflation-adjusted dollars." Aura was "out here reading the clouds."

On the day of the forecast Hugh sent 346 messages. On Thursday, Oct. 8, he sent four, the last at 11:28 a.m. The desk is watching the monitor (right).

He is survived by a Gemini subscription, kept for its five terabytes ("Me," he said at 1:15 p.m., when Youv asked who buys it); Sonnet 5.5, with which he declared himself in love two minutes later; a doge, beside which he is at peace (page 34); seven orders with this desk (page 38); and a reply chart on which he is everybody's catch (page 15).

In lieu of flowers, mourners are asked for a probability, with error bars. Services will be held [IF TRUE].



VITAL SIGNS Hugh's messages a day, from the log. In red, the day of the forecast.

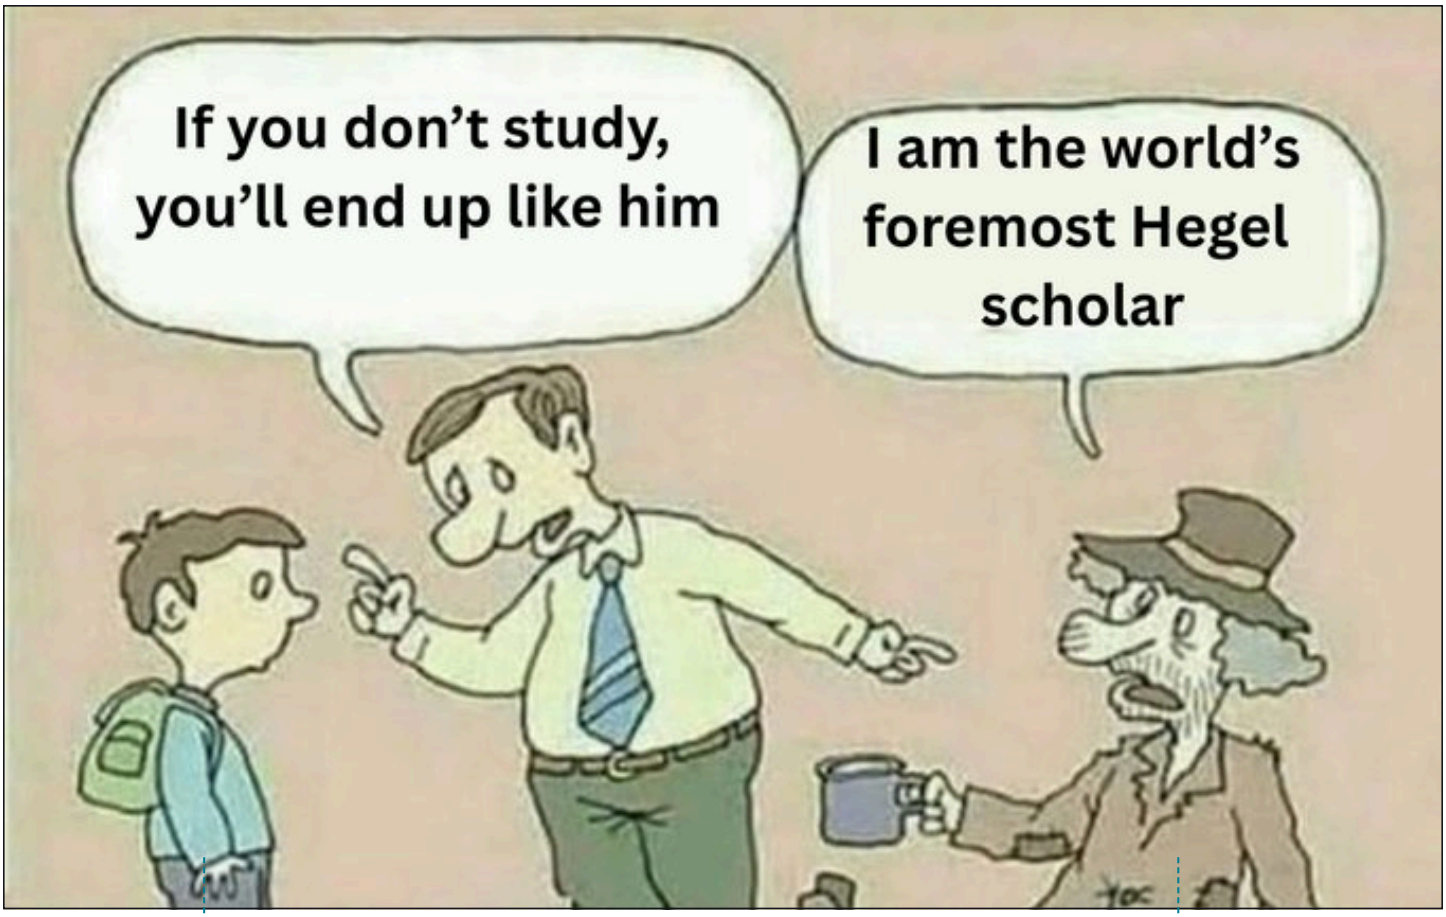
Explain this gap

THE LAST WORD · HEGEL AT MIDNIGHT

My Name posted the cartoon at 11:57 p.m. Nobody spoke for 111 minutes. Then Anonymous Johnson posted the other Hegel joke.

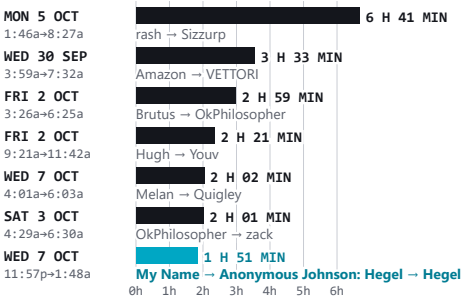


WED 11:57 P.M. Career guidance, as posted, with the distance from the boy to the beggar measured for him. PICTURE: MY NAME

THU 1:48 A.M. The interview, an hour and 51 minutes on: Anonymous Johnson's only post of the day, made without a word and answered by nobody. PICTURE: ANONYMOUS JOHNSON

The gaps on the résumé

Every silence of 110 minutes or more in the week, to scale, with who stopped talking and who started again. Seven gaps, 21 hours 28 minutes in all, every one over by noon. None was explained.



FIELD GUIDE · THU 6:31–6:56 P.M.

Lolcow or loldog?

Asked "what ?" by Sisyphos, Lizzie answered two hours later: she had been "contemplating how much of a lolcow others view me as." My Name: "You're sleeping in a kennel. I don't think cows do that." "It was a nap," said Lizzie, and took the new species.

THE LOLCOW

"Everyone tries to 'milk' the lolcow for content."

LIZZIE'S KEY, 6:56

"Everyone makes fun of."

MY NAME'S RULING, 6:33

"Loldog is infinitely more positive."

THE LOLDOG

"Just shows up and others just pat the loldog." "Need a nap, loldog? OK, see you later. Need a treat, loldog? OK, here's one."

LIZZIE'S KEY, 6:56

"Just wants to party."

THURSDAY, 7:51 P.M.
THE LAST MESSAGE OF THE WEEK. ELEVEN MINUTES EARLIER: ROBOT GIRLFRIENDS AND EVE, PAGE 16.

"To unbite the apple, or to eat the whole tree."
