OFFICIAL FIGHT POSTER. The final knife fight of Dune: Part Two, recast: Hugh, left, realist corner; Quigley, right, pragmatist corner. Posted by Quigley at twenty to nine on Saturday night, again on Monday when soob asked how the boxing match went. Commissioned by the loser: "We need to crop Hugh and me unto the final fight in Dune part 2."

Four hours on the main stage over what makes a statement true. A StrawPoll settles it nine to three. The loser settles it differently, all week.

THE CARD

HUGH QUIGLEY

StrawPoll, by a guest, 4.33pm; twelve votes.
"TOTAL QUIGLEY DEMOLITION."

The main stage opened at two on Saturday afternoon with the question HPCR had sanded down for the occasion, "What makes our statements, theories and facts true," and closed a little before six with the same question, slightly worn. In the realist corner: Hugh, British, shirtless from half past two, eating from a bowl of hotdogs. In the pragmatist corner: Quigley, of Boston, on a can of Alani pink slush, holding a view he called Deweyan-Rortian on the day and, by Friday, warranted assertibility the whole time. Ape, the Australian, was asleep, and stayed asleep for seventeen hours.

The side chat scored it like a fight because it had decided in advance that it was one. Stackhouse reported throat singing at half past two, Aura reported the hotdogs, and at 2.33 Stackhouse asked why Hugh had just taken his shirt off. At a quarter to three chair discovered that Hugh is British. Aura found the ceiling fan Quigley was hanging from, then filed the afternoon's only summary: how we know something versus what makes something true, Quigley says there is no difference in practice, "he has like 700 reps along this dialogue tree."

The verdict came at 4.33. zack called it mob rule; Stackhouse established by twenty to six that Hugh deployed twenty subagents to rig it. Quigley allowed that "it's true if it matches underlying reality" has an intuitive edge, called it a nice discussion, and by eight in the evening had the sentence he would use for the rest of the week: "I recognize the distinction that this is incorrect." On Monday soob asked how the boxing match went. Quigley posted the picture above, and a correction: "Except I won."

RINGSIDE, FROM THE SIDE CHAT

Four hours in twelve rounds, as scored by people who were not listening

The bout ran on the main stage. The record of it ran in text, where the commentary was about hotdogs, shirts and nationality. This is the only transcript that survives, because Meliorne stopped taking notes.

ROUND 1 2.03PM

Monkey: The quigmeister vs hugh chungus. Youv: homeless people shouting match. Monkey: bro hugh actually looks homeless. he needs a haircut stat. quigley put on an outfit.

ROUND 2 2.04PM

The openings, per the stenographer. Meliorne posts a transcript of the first minutes. Hugh's opening line, as recorded: "Sorry — I'm a little nervous." Stenographer's note, appended: "Man this is garbage."

ROUND 3 2.29PM

Stackhouse reports throat singing from the stage; Monkey clarifies at 2.32 that it was not, technically, throat singing. Aura: i can't believe he's eating a bowl of hotdogs during the debate rn.

ROUND 4 2.33PM

Stackhouse: Wait why did Hugh just take his shirt off? What is happening? Monkey posts the side-chat screenshot (right): "im dead."

ROUND 5 2.47PM

chair: oh my god hugh is british. No further commentary for eleven minutes.

ROUND 6 2.58PM

Jere: Who's winning. Monkey: quigley is doing quigley. Aura: quig is hanging from his ceiling fan rn. swinging.

ROUND 7 3.17PM

ROUND 8 3.36PM

Monkey: quig admitted revelation could be true. Lizzy: need it clipped to believe. Stackhouse posts the chestburster from Alien. vannak: As was foretold.

ROUND 9 4.33PM

The decision. A StrawPoll, "WHO WON THE DEBATE," by a guest: HUGH (REALISM) 75%, nine votes; QUIGLEY (PRAGMATISM) 25%, three. Caption: TOTAL QUIGLEY DEMOLITION. zack: mob rule. Stackhouse: its definitely not.

ROUND 10 4.40PM

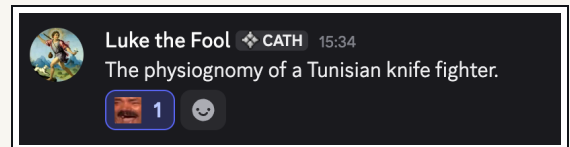

Hugh: Post your debate reviews here chat, i think it went well. Meliorne: recording VCs is usually frowned upon. I can recreate the debate with flash 2.5. Hugh: listen buddy it wasnt that bad :pain:

ROUND 11 5.40PM

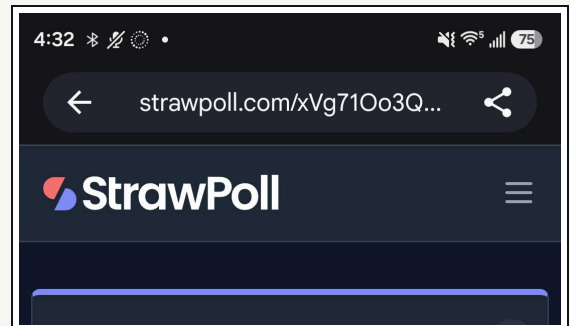

Stackhouse: It's crazy how Hugh deployed 20 subagents to rig the vote in his favor. Charlie: I hate that Claude would refuse to do this. he used grok.

ROUND 12 5.52PM

Quigley: "It's true if it matches/parallels underlying reality" has an intuitive edge, for sure. It was a nice discussion, though. Jere: Truth is a narrow corridor so this isn't indicting at all. Unless u believe in community of inquirers. Tough!

ROUND 4, EXHIBIT. Monkey's screenshot of the side chat, posted at 2.35pm when Stackhouse asked why Hugh had taken his shirt off. Luke the Fool [CATH], 3.34: "The physiognomy of a Tunisian knife fighter." One reaction. Stackhouse, that evening: "the guy who said Hugh looked like a tunisian knife fighter." Five KEKW. dot: "Editors include this next week." Included; see also page 4.

ROUND 9, EXHIBIT. The poll as posted at 4.33pm: Hugh (Realism) 75%, nine; Quigley (Pragmatism) 25%, three; twelve votes; phone clock 4.32.

MEANWHILE, RINGSIDE

The same afternoon, in the same channel, AabsoluteZero was preparing for a one o'clock wine tasting while suffering what he described as micro farts and what the winery later described as a suspected gas leak. At six past one Quigley asked Pearl whether the F-tier chatters could stop using the debate channel as gen chat. AabsoluteZero: "ill have you know im a c tier lamp." Full public-health notice, page 15.

THE PRESS CONFERENCES

Hugh, 4.40pm: "Post your debate reviews here chat, i think it went well."

Quigley, 11.55pm, on whether he had lost: "Thing is, I just had the recognition of the distinction that he's wrong. No justification needed." On the substance: "Ultimately, he just didn't give any reasons for why someone should adopt his viewpoint. Which is an autolose to me." On the round in which he was reported to have admitted revelation could be true: "Maybe revelation was the gesture." Restated for the record: "I think if you can't give reasons/justification for your view it's an auto-lose."

Quigley, Monday, 4.17pm, asked by soob how the boxing match went: posts the fight poster. "Except I won." Ape, on his own record against the same opponent: "i absolutely DESTROYED quigly." HPCR, after the second, unscheduled voice bout that afternoon: "Might just be at one."

AFTER THE FIGHT: IS WATER WET

MELIORNE, 9.14PM All scientific inquiry is derived from revelation :PEPE: and I mean this somewhat seriously. Water never boils at 100 degrees.

BARDIEL1 science says all water boils at 100 degrees celsius regardless of environment, and if you disagree they send a firing squad.

LIZZY is water wet

WILLOW Only when the water does the action of being wet. When it does the action of being not wet.

QUIGLEY Never ask them for examples. I currently recognize the distinction that you are incorrect.

THE NEW CUT

Quigley changed his profile picture on Saturday evening to a caricature drawn during the voice chat. Lizzy: "bald ☹️". Aura: "what happened to your cut. you aged 3 whole years today." Quigley: "Like my new cut?" By Tuesday morning Bedbug had to ask whether he was bald now. "Just in the middle." Then: "yea it's fake bro. hilarious tho." That evening: "I'm tempted to go back to the hot pfp again." Lizzy: "you know my current pfp isn't real right." "i saw your screen during the debate." Stackhouse: "Quigley activating rizz mode."

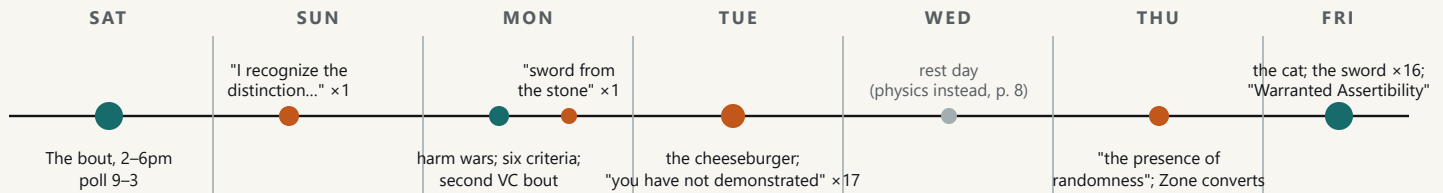

POST-FIGHT LISTENING

On Wednesday Hugh sent Quigley an hour-long track: "if you have the hermeneutic chops you might hear the parallels to our debate in each phrase." Quigley: "An hour? Imma get claude to give me the tldr." Hugh: "Ew no. I don't do that to you." Quigley asked whether it could be explained instead, preferably in less than an hour; Jere said no. Hugh: an interesting literary approach with parallels to their discussion. Quigley: "So is Harry Potter tho." He would like the written version for his e-reader.

FIVE DAYS OF REMATCHES

Nobody changes their mind, and several people change their names

The bout ended on Saturday. The argument did not, and by Friday it had absorbed a cheeseburger, a whip, a coin, a dog, a rabbit, Nazis on four separate days and the word "useless" eight times.

Monday morning, the harm wars. Hugh, asked by Quigley what made the Nazis immoral: "For me, the recognition of harm." Willow: "Don't worry, the community of inquirers agree it's not harm. 😊" Sizzurp arrived from work with cats: "Do cats believe they're in pain when you step on their tails." Jere, on the cat's belief: "oh wow, that happened."

THE SIX CRITERIA OF WARRANT

Quigley, Monday 8.52am; reposted Tuesday; cited Friday as "a criteria of warrant."

1. Does it resolve the problem? (Resolution)
2. Do its consequences hold up when tested? (Predictive success)
3. Does it cohere with other warranted assertions? (Coherence)
4. Can others run the test and get the result? (Public checkability)
5. Has it faced the strongest objections and held? (Survival)
6. Does it open further inquiry? (Fruitfulness)

Hugh's marking of item 6, as applied to the Third Reich: "Inquiry could continue after jewish extermination, [disclaimer: this does not mean its good lol]."

At 8.52 Quigley posted the six criteria of warrant (right). Hugh answered point by point, with a disclaimer where Nazi Germany passes criterion six. Hugh: "im engaging with your view lol. something you cant do in return." Quigley: the view "doesn't do anything and, like the solipsist, is discarded when it comes to the real world." An unscheduled second voice bout ran that afternoon. At 2.28 Meliorne said it for the first time: "I will pull the sword from the stone that is anthony." HPCR, after: "Might just be at one."

TUESDAY: THE CHEESEBURGER

Quigley, at noon: "It's a shame you're unable to eat a cheeseburger without first knowing if it runs parallel to reality." Aura: "anthony is the bald guy in the matrix enjoying his fake ass steak." Quigley: "'Exist' is a nothing word, btw." Jere: "What's the difference between me and SpongeBob." Quigley: "He's cool." Hugh, an hour in: "is it possible to appear as a cheeseburger but not be one?" Quigley: "I'd still eat you tho." At 1.29 Hugh replied "you have not demonstrated" seventeen times in a row and attached three pictures of Deleuze.

That afternoon Meliorne: "A good master ought whip the slave!" Quigley reposted the criteria and ran "Nazis are immoral" through them; fruitfulness, the Nuremberg Trials. sleep: "bro aren't you literally spamming bulletpoints." Quigley: "- No." Ape: "It's like comparing flat earth to a rejection of the axiom of choice." Quigley: "This. Is. Not. A. Theory. Of.

Truth." Then, at half past four: "Honestly, I don't know what you want from me."

THURSDAY AND FRIDAY

Asked what makes a thing random, Quigley answered "The presence of randomness, of course" and discovered a metaphysics that cannot lose (page 26). Zone, asked what the difference was: "Anthony is a follower of Willow. And im a follower of Kant. Still the same." Jere: "damn looks like this is a real shift in the vibe economy." Friday, at noon: "That's what I'm doing when I say 'I recognize the distinction that you're incorrect, Willow.'" Hugh filed the week's longest statement of his position at 1.04; Quigley replied that it was useless, in bold, twice. Asked for one example of a claim known to parallel reality, Hugh: "I know I exist." Quigley: "How do you know this is paralleling reality?" Meliorne brought Zeno's arrow; Quigley brought a cat (page 6). At 3.39: "You must not be familiar with my Ethnocentrism." At 4.24: "I've been arguing for Warranted Assertibility the whole time."

Week in words. "recognize the distinction," 27 uses, 23 of them Quigley's. "warrant," 87. "community of inquirers," 11. "sword from the stone" (Meliorne), 16. "useless" (Quigley, Friday), 8. Nazis invoked on four days out of five.

Jeh, to Hugh, Monday: "Yet bro still eats meat."

FRIDAY, HALF PAST ONE TO FIVE

Two people look at a cat

Meliorne sets out, for the sixteenth time this week, to pull the sword from the stone that is Anthony. Quigley brings a cat. Within twelve minutes there are extermination camps in it.

Meliorne's Friday plan was Zeno. Freeze-frame a flying arrow and it is static in that instant; stack up points of justification and you will never get knowledge, which is "the actual kinetic process/fight," while justification "is just a grid measuring it." Quigley replied that, to his limited understanding, motion simply is occupying different positions at successive instants, with no continuous flow behind the scenes. Meliorne, in bold: the modern view "actually agrees with me." At 2.22: "Please god let me pull sword from the stone that is Anthony." At 2.32: ":despair: another failed attempt to pull the sword from the stone, I thought I had him."

Quigley then made it, in his words, real simple. Two people look at a cat. One says it is blue, one says it is black. How, individually or communally, do you work out which claim is matching underlying reality? zack: "lie detector." Meliorne asked whether he could look at the cat. Yes. He would investigate, ideally from both positions. "You look at the cat from every position. Now what?" Quigley added: "I feel like a dm right now."

THE CAT, VERBATIM

MELIORNE is the cat blue when I look at it from the blue side? Is the cat black when I look at it from the black side? Is it just red throughout from my distinction?

MELIORNE if the cat is actually black. and I do the distinction that it's black - then I have knowledge! it just happened to be.

QUIGLEY Are you saying that both claimants are equally justified in believing their claim to be true?

MELIORNE yes! they are BOTH justified

QUIGLEY Then you're fucking dumb sir

MELIORNE brush up on your response to the zeno's paradox of motion critique

The next question was whether Nazis are as justified as liberals. "depends on what the nazis are doing and in what relation." Extermination camps, same question. Meliorne, announcing that he would answer in a way designed to trigger: "yes, in the sense that liberals have zero justification and ergo nazis have zero justification. it's equal." Quigley thanked him for the self-report. Meliorne: "justification about extermination camps is fundamentally different than justification of extermination camps. nice trick." Quigley: same setup as the cat. Meliorne: "you should have written your question more clearly." At 2.58 Meliorne restated the whole position in one paragraph, no amount of points on a graph giving motion. Quigley's reply, in full: "POV: When you skip school." Three OMEGALUL, the most any reply got that afternoon. Meliorne: "its not that deep." Seven minutes later: "Okay I have a new approach to pull the sword from the stone that is Anthony. Gotta refine it."

The refinement arrived at 3.36. Under whose criteria of warrant were the Nazis unjustified? Quigley: his. "You must not be familiar with my Ethnocentrism." HPCR: "Please choose a different name." Ape: "this is not the time to invoke rorty." Quigley: "Which makes it the perfect time 🐱."

TRADER'S TRAP, 2.51PM

TRADER Hypothetically, if we lived in a world where soup kitchens for the homeless were called extermination camps, would you support extermination camps?

HPCR Did you see the bat signal trader TRADER I noticed a ripple in the ether

ZACK yes because that term would be my hypothetical normal in this scenario. We'd also have to call extermination camps soup kitchens

TRADER Wow. You admit it just like that huh ZACK Hypothetically yes i admit it

BARDIEL1 lentil soup 🍲

THE REFEREE'S CARD

Ape, who had been in "another high-effort convo," gave the Zeno analogy a proper answer at 3.25: two points on a graph can represent motion perfectly well, and the analogy was not illuminating. Worse for Meliorne, it would not land on this opponent, because Quigley treats truth as something like "the limit of justification," so the objection is already priced in. Then: "while i think this analogizing to maths is somewhat grotesque, i am now tempted to construct some 'Discontinuity' argument."

AT THE SHED

AabsoluteZero, arriving at 3.27: "why would you want the weak ass dagger thats next to the shed in bg3, aint really a sword in a stone." Then: "my critique of pure reason,... it fucking sucks ass." Meliorne: "Kinda goes hard for a book name." AabsoluteZero: "it would be a barns and nobles ass book for sure. and it wouldbe about 'self love'. id die and hate it more."

QUIGLEY

JENG, ALSO KNOWN AS ANIME MAN

TUESDAY, 1.25PM · TEXT ONLY · DURATION: TWO MINUTES

"FIGHT NIGHT COMMENCES NOW." "AAAAAAND ITS OVER."

Hugh announces the week's second bout and calls it inside one message, because the challenger has been blocked.

Jeng, who is also Anime Man, had spent Tuesday lunchtime declining to VC Quigley and answering his questions with links to earlier answers. At 1.25 he told Quigley to move his hand and click on one of them, using the word the channel uses for everything. Quigley: "I have a personal rule against people using the r slur at me. Please retract or be blocked." Hugh: "here we go. now the real content begins." Jeng did not retract. Hugh: "DO NOT RETRACT GRIH. BOOOOOOOM." Quigley: "Get blocked, bitch." Hugh: "FIGHT NIGHT COMMENCES NOW." Then: "AAAAAAND ITS OVER." Jeng: "There, it's over." dot: "VCVCVCVC." Stackhouse's verdict: Grih used the Quigley Kryptonite.

Jeng's age had come up seven minutes earlier. Zone asked; Jeng said 37; the room supplied a cringe emote, a crying face and one GIGACHAD. Ape: "He is spiritually 97." Jeng, taking the compliment: "I wouldn't mind learning from you. Age is just a number." Told this was a poor choice of words, he asked how it was a poor choice of words, four KEKW and a !. dot: "Wrong thing to double down on." Stackhouse asked whether Grih was on the spectrum by any chance. Jere: "The spectrum is on him." Jeng: three psychologists, independently, unprompted and unknowing of each other, had told him it was highly likely. HPCR: "No I talked to him it was def autism." Five KEKW.

By the numbers. 37, Jeng's age, per Jeng. 97, per Ape. 17, the times Hugh had typed "you have not demonstrated" by 1.29pm. 2 minutes, the bout. 0, hands moved.

THE VC DENIAL LEDGER

11.33 Quigley: Bring it to vc if you're so confident. Jeng: Naw, whatever you can say in VC, you can write here or link something.

13.02 Quigley: Meet me in vc. Jeng links to a previous answer. Blocked at 1.26.

14.51 Youv, on the last time: the last time that we VC'ed (about Sam Harris) I thought it was absolutely miserable... I remember it ending with me telling you that you should be banned from using certain terms. I was right then.

15.02 Quigley: Other people vc me and it isn't a problem. Meliorne: I'll opt to run. Irl. I'm going to skip work and gym soon.

16.14 dot: Why won't you vc him? Quigley: Baby back bitch is why. Jeng: Apparently others have tried and found it a bad experience. So, that's enough knowledge for me.

The block did not end the undercard. At 3.40 Jere, arguing that Pluto was a planet, named a famous science denier: "Alfred Einstein." Jeng: "Alfred?" Jere: "Oh fuck." Hugh recorded a huge aura loss for Jere, "rare." Zone: "Alfred would whooped Albert in a 1v1." Half an hour later, when the argument needed an authority, Hugh: "Perhaps, maybe Alfred knows."

The blocked party was still blocked on Friday. At 4.47 that afternoon Jeng, unable to answer Quigley on correspondence, posted the Stanford Encyclopedia's definition into the open channel and asked Zone to copy-paste it across. Zone: "I mean, you can still see blocked messages if you choose to click on them."

WEDNESDAY, 12.45 TO 2.37

Thanks, grok: the equivalence-principle war

Hugh v Youv v zack's chatbot v Jere's chatbot, over whether Einstein's equivalence principle abolishes the universal now. It does not, and it took two hours.

Sisyphos had asked, sincerely, whether we can trust our senses, and observed that the now cannot exist because we perceive everything in the past. Hugh: "You can get rid of a universal now with Einstein's equivalence principle though, that's harder to swerve." Five minutes later zack, back from a three-day voteban and typing from a bathtub, posted a paragraph beginning "I don't think Einstein's equivalence principle gets rid of a universal 'now' by itself." Three KEKW and a 🤖. dot: "Why are you using Claude to respond to him. Make it less obvious." zack: "prove i didn't write this." HPCR: "Zack, you routinely showed us that you were complete idiot and mostly in the shallow pool and all of a sudden you understand Einstein special relativity, and the consequences for simultaneity? Come on bro." zack: "Do you think a smart person would reveal all their cards at once. u guys are suckers. im smart. i expect to be paid."

Youv, who has the exercises in several GR textbooks worked by hand, offered that basic special relativity is high-school physics, so that checks out, and then asked the question that lasted two hours: what does the equivalence principle have to do with the universal now? "The equivalence principle (as I have learned it) is about the equivalence of inertial and gravitational mass. That's it." Hugh answered with gravitational frames. zack answered with a second paragraph. Hugh: "Thanks grok." Quigley: "Calling people a pedo isn't allowed in here." zack, at 1.13: "yeah im done for today, what a waste of time lmao." dot, three minutes later, in italics: You've reached your limit for GPT-4o. Responses will use another model until your limit resets after 9:30 p.m., August 26. The kill of the day. zack: "no im just in the bathtub and 1 hand is wet and im done thinking for free."

At 1.19 Hugh pasted a paragraph beginning "You're absolutely right — There's an even subtler connection," with a boxed equation, at zack. zack: "i broke him. with my brain. lol." Jere posted 3,763 characters of LaTeX about foliation freedom and the frame bundle having no preferred section; when zack said "ai," Jere said that was insulting, zack said sorry, and Jere said it was ok. Youv: "Okay so we are just sloppyfying the channel ig. gg."

The second half was Youv alone. "What in the hell is a 'derivable lorentzian'... I'm seeing quite a few of '-' in your messages." Hugh: "I always use en dashes retard - clankers use em dashes —". Youv: "Ok... ok. Fair enough." zack: "no they switched to en dashes i think." Hugh: "You are retarded." Youv, at 2.27: "charitably its a word salad of non standard terminology, uncharitably you dont really understand the physics/math." Hugh, at 2.29, conceded a minor mistake: describing equivalence as the root of the relativity of simultaneity when it came after and one does not entail the other. vannak: "physics hard." Hugh: "real but unwarranted."

MONDAY: THE NUMBER THEORISTS

Youv, grinding real-analysis

12:45 Hugh: equivalence principle kills the universal now
12:50 zack (AI): "You're probably thinking of relativity of simultaneity"
12:59 Youv: "equivalence of inertial and gravitational mass. That's it."
13:05 Hugh: "Thanks grok"
13:16 dot: Limit for GPT-4o reached
13:19 Hugh (AI): "You're absolutely right —"
13:25 Jere: 3,763 characters of LaTeX

homework, ranked mathematics by taste. Checking whether a series converges: "Its all slop." Topology and differential geometry: everything interesting about analysis without the epsilon-delta trash. Ape: "youre telling me you dont get even a little chub when you find the right delta for that epsilon?" Youv: "Not even in the slightest." HPCR: "If Youv had sex one time he'd forget all about topology." Youv: "I would simply apply my topology knowledge in sex to determine the number of holes." Of number theory, from which Hugh came to mathematics as a teenager "raised by the internet," Youv said the thing about who works on it, three times. Hugh: "what? :OMEGALUL:". Ape: "Only analytic number theory." Combinatorics was second worst, as "slopbinatorics." Youv, leaving: "I feel like both of you don't really have arguments and are mostly just fueled by emotions. so ill go study now."

THE MAN WHO ASKED

Sisyphos, 12.23: "was up guys." Hugh: "Is sense-certainty warranted?" Sisyphos: "i dont even understand what that means. like can we trust our senses?" At one o'clock: "you guys are just making up words." At 1.17: "i think you guys dont realize on what kind of different lvl you operate in when it come to this." Nobody answered his question.

Who in Phil Chat knows any science, per Hugh and chair: vannak, "one of the only people here who has a deep understanding of the topic they study"; Brutus, "he loves his diatoms ong"; Janne, a math nerd.

MONDAY, 3.18PM; REPOSTED WEDNESDAY, 12.03PM

The Paragraph

Sizzurp, asked a sorites question by dot, declines it in 116 words. Two days later Stackhouse reposts it, and it becomes the emote farm of the week.

NOTICE

Yes, you are an impoverished interlocutor. I don't want to have to go through the meta discussions of why the way you're trying to engage is useless and unimportant. I already told you I'm not interested in that level of abstraction— it's simply a philosophical question of the general sorities kind. I have no interest in that. Either you can respect that, especially the second time I've made that clear, or I will fucking ruin you. I will make sure every time I see you in here that I disparage you with the most unnecessary, cruel, and targeted commentary to tear away any ability you have left to engage in this kind of incompetent interrogation and make your sense of self confidence a casualty of my brutal treatment. But I don't want to go down that road, so just respect my disinterest in the philosophical discussion you wish to have.

— SIZZURP, TO DOT, MONDAY, 3.18PM

READER'S GUIDE

- impoverished interlocutor — dot, 21, who had just finished a philosophy degree and, on Monday, a thesis.
- the general sorities kind — sorites; the heap. At what percentage is it the thing.
- I will fucking ruin you — no ruining has been observed. On Tuesday the author was giving dot "a properly amish shunning"; on Wednesday he was at work.
- a casualty of my brutal treatment — dot, Wednesday: "Idk i am very aware of when im being volatile."

The occasion was dot asking, in his willoworm period, at what percentage a thing becomes the thing, and whether Sizzurp's earlier answer of 25% survived contact with 51%. Sizzurp had said, once, that he was not interested in that level of abstraction. He said it a second time at greater length, at left, with an undertaking attached. dot's reply on the day was to ask whether he was all right.

On Wednesday at three minutes past noon Stackhouse pasted it back into the channel without comment. Four KEKW and a fire. Puckspartan: "good emote farm stack." dot: "God bless sizzurps heart." Stackhouse: "I need to know if he meant every word in this." dot: "He typed for like 15 minutes." Monkey asked whether it could be made a command in citadel; Stackhouse wished he knew how. dot: "Sizz is crazily sensitive and too easy to upset for me to be around without an overseer." Puckspartan: "imagine caring about sizz." Stackhouse: "Idk man he kinda cooked you." Hugh asked whether it was Gris; told it was Sizz: "Easily baited." Puckspartan: "yeah I haven't effort posted like that in years." The author, who works days, was not present, and has not confirmed whether he meant every word.

THE DIAGNOSIS

Monday afternoon's exchange also produced Stackhouse's status update, "all they know is McDonalds, charge their phone, twerk, be bisexual, eat hot chip and lie," which Monkey screenshotted and posted as a joint diagnosis of dot and Sizzurp. Sizzurp: "I do charge my phone."

THE AUTHOR, ELSEWHERE THIS WEEK

Saturday: "Some people think im gay! So lemme tell you... I understand what it means to be misunderstood." Aura: "u are tho." Jere: "imagine having the name angel and calling other people gay." Tuesday, on Ape: "Ape and I just have really good platonic chemistry." Wednesday, 8.56am: "My balls are Phil chat now." Thursday, told he was like a social worker for spending two hours on jtheezy: "I'm a heterosexual male." Thursday evening, shown an AI-detector result on a sentence about his mother: "Wait that's hot." Friday, on feet: "it literally looks like the designer was in a hurry and just smashed a bunch of shit together before running off to whatever else was calling for their attention at the time."

MOST-REACTED MESSAGE OF THE WEEK

Tuesday, 12.12pm. Fourteen reactions. Context required.

APE Or that one gay experience I had with sizzurp. HUGH one?

SIZZURP I never did anything homosexual with ape. Ape and I just have really good platonic chemistry. I would be satisfied if ape was my boyfriend as long as I had a hot biddie to have sex with to fulfill my sexual needs. We'd also have to enjoy different beds. And rooms maybe even apartments.

SIZZURP I'm not giving dot the satisfaction of engaging with his stupid sorites question.

APE Alr well it seems like the matter is out of my hands then and I can continue mentally and physically masturbating.

SIZZURP you went from beating your dick to being your dick.

HUGH yall jorkin it in philchat ong seek repentance

Also from the author, Thursday, to dot on Marx: "Here comes the real intellectual guys." Then: "Let me spent time with your mother. Alone."

THE VOTEBAN, NARRATED

STACKHOUSE Just to narrate for the Times: Pearl is repeatedly trying to issue a voteban command for Zack but is failing.

STACKHOUSE Narration: She fails once more. 4th time in a row.

PEARL Leave me alone. Fuck. Literally leave me alone. No I'm just gonna have shambles do it.

PEARL I had to read a discord help page

FENCEJUMPER Make sure you're not doing that shit by the time you're near 30. PEARL That's in 2 years asshole. Yeah you're old. Ew.

zack's last message before the ban was a screenshot of FenceJumper's Princess Bride speech, captioned "why do you think they have the 'supreme court' deal with you guys." Stackhouse's diagnosis, ten minutes earlier: "I got it.

Zack is male Kady. The relentless nihilism. Hatred of the world. The paranoia." Lizzy: "Trans Kady." dot: "Kady had curiosity." Lizzy: "You miss her." Pearl, once the command took: "Let me know how you wanna be buried." Lizzy: "Can they just use my body for science." chair: "creamed to death in a tub of icecream."

Lizzy, 12.42, to the defendant: "Zack, you want me to be worse off than you so badly, because I have achieved what you're aiming for."

Appeals. zack, Wednesday, denied ever having been banned. Hugh: "I must have confused you for some other retard." Friday, 2.17am, after HPCR moved for a second term: "first i called for zack to be banned. and he got banned. then they called for me to be banned. and zack wasn't there to speak for me."

Counsel for the rules. dot, Thursday: "Was Willow ever a mod? How does she know all the rules." Willow: "It's fair to say this one has come up a bit in interactions I've observed over the years."

JUVENILE COURT: UNCLE MONKEY'S ADVICE

Delivered 3.10–3.34am Saturday, to a sixteen-year-old who had just posted a modal proof, before reporting him.

- go touch grass and try to formalize why there's beauty in the world
- Go to a church and feel the choir
- stop deferring your thinking to claude
- What floats your boat should be TITTIES NOT LOGIC (Scotal: "I'm more of a thigh guy." Monkey: "see this is why we can't have minors in here")
- Swimming, piano, and jiu jitsu are required and non negotiable
- Because I can tell you're lonely (Scotal: "All of it")

Docket, pending. HPCR's motion for zack's second term, Friday 2.17am.

9.37PM WEDNESDAY. "I have secured the cooking ingredients." Packaging redacted. My Name: "why are they redacted." zack: "No. they're about to get executed and consumed."

11.55PM. The plate. Meliorne: "this is fucking disgusting. too many carbs. add some peas. or broccoli." zack: "how would i even cook the broccoli. Would i cook it separately." At 11.59, the last message of the day: "man in so fucking GOOD holy shit."

6.18PM, THE DAY BEFORE. "this is my air frier chicken sandwich." chair: "looks great. is that thigh or breast." Meliorne: "I've never seen someone proven wrong so quickly." zack: "but i cant make it without an air frier."

FRIENDS, DEFINED

Thursday night Sisyphe asked zack how many friends he had. Policy followed: he outsources these thoughts here at zero risk, so any actual friend would be transactional; "friends are just people u hang out with I can do that with anyone." Sisyphe: "Your views seem very shallow." zack: "why." Sisyphe: "Take a chill pill and vibe out son." zack: "what's vibe out." Nobody answered. "ill ask the ai."

WEDNESDAY, 4.31PM, TO FRIDAY

Who's Phil: a man, a pot, a hostage, and the air fryer he did not buy

Back from a three-day ban, zack asked the channel to choose his dinner, refused every answer, and cooked one anyway.

He came back at six minutes past one on Wednesday morning, from a bathtub, and posted 280 times before midnight. chair noticed at 1.12: "oh ur back. change of scenery? how's life phil-free." zack: "who's Phil." By two he had an ethics: "If I had 10 million dollars any behavior would be justified." A\ explained that ten million is not that kind of money. "I know that but 10 mil is a realistic goal. Ill open a roth IRA. yep that's it."

At 4.31: "what should i eat. food name. outsource decision making now. please. im going to starve if I dont decide." Stackhouse: pizza. "pizza is bread." Charlie: "No slop, stay strong." At 4.45 came the essay: he could survive two weeks without food, so it was not about food but about the psychological toll of money spent on something mid. "Unrealized means the choices remain limitless and that includes all the good choices. Therefore I can savor that and eat nothing." Stackhouse: "bro is waxing poetic about slop." zack: "this isn't about food." At five, a plan: ground beef, onion, sauce, pasta, "50/50," because "for all my life people have been cheating me on the sauce." He asked Quigley, who is smart, whether this was what he should do. Quigley: "No comment." chair, at 5.28: "hunger is physiological, satisfaction is a state of mind, what zack has is called a skill issue, which can be learned. never look back zack."

The store had no air fryer, so he bought spaghetti and meat and took them prisoner. At 10.04 My Name identified the victim: "Barilla Spaghetti, 410 g." zack: "you cant save him in time. water is boiling. Get the Italians to pay the ransom or Barilla will be getting some swimming lessons soon. I will break him in half so he can fit in the pot." My Name: "If he dies, he dies." Then: "He is merely Spaghetti. a commoner. You take a Tagliatelle or a Orecchiette maybe Bucatini or Trofie. AND THEN WE WILL RAIN HOLY OLIVE OIL ON YOU." zack: "Funny, that's what the wasps think of you." Dinner took an hour and twenty minutes, which he attributed to a wormhole until Pearl explained that a stove takes two things at once. "I have only 1 large pot. Did the sauce first and then the pasta. Oh that's why. Ok." Stackhouse: "Zack I'm eagerly tracking your progress as a chatter. Keep up the good work." Pearl: "quickly becoming the phil chat pet."

THE AIR FRYER DOCTRINE, THURSDAY 11.57PM

Walmart, whose floors are always dirty unless you go to the elite Walmarts, had air fryers, all of which, with the box, were too big for his bag. Stackhouse: "Do you weight like 400 pounds? Do you think of anything except food?" zack: "it's not wise to deviate from the plan, and the plan was to get an air fryer. You can have a plan B... But you cant just make up a plan on the spot. Otherwise when do you draw the line. That's how you go broke." He went home without one. "This practice encourages long term thinking." A\: "it is a risk. and there is no in-between."

ALSO FILED, THURSDAY

Starbucks, 8.56pm: "how do people even have a favorite drink. Did they try them all." Tim Hortons, 10.14pm: whether a Caesar salad is "just asking to get tape worms or am i paranoid."

THURSDAY, 6.53AM TO 10.54AM

jtheezy v the Stanford Encyclopedia of Philosophy

A newcomer with a first from a Russell Group university objects to the tone of one paragraph about Ayn Rand. 167 messages and four hours later, he thanks Sizzurp and leaves.

Whereas Rand's ideas and mode of presentation make Rand popular with many non-academics, they lead to the opposite outcome with academics. She developed some of her views in response to questions from her readers, but seldom took the time to defend them against possible objections or to reconcile them with the views expressed in her novels. Her philosophical essays lack the self-critical, detailed style of analytic philosophy, or any serious attempt to consider possible objections to her views. Her polemical style, often contemptuous tone, and the dogmatism and cult-like behavior of many of her fans also suggest that her work is not worth taking seriously.^[2] Further, understanding her views requires reading her fiction, but her fiction is not to everyone's taste. It does not help that she often dismisses other philosophers' views on the basis of cursory readings and conversations with a few philosophers and with her young philosophy student acolytes. Some

EXHIBIT A. The paragraph, as posted at 6.53am. Every disputed phrase is legible: "not worth taking seriously," "not to everyone's taste," "her young philosophy student acolytes."

The complaint was narrow and, on its face, reasonable: a reference work should not talk like that. jtheezy, 6.54am: "Her fans are cult like so her work isn't worth taking seriously, also her literature sucks and she's mean' - an actual academically respected philosophical resource." The chat's first response, from vannak, two hours later: "What if we want too much from philosophical diatribes, and we should just be fist fighting while laying out one-liners."

HPCR's position was that the SEP is written by analytic philosophers with opinions, that it is not a bone dry encyclopedia, and that "Rand is a retard so." At 9.29: "Why are you so stupid." jtheezy: "I am not, in fact, stupid." HPCR: "If someone ever tries to say they're not stupid by putting it this way, you can guarantee that they're stupid." At 9.32 jtheezy played his card, the first from a Russell Group university, "so perhaps you can engage properly now?" Jere, within the minute: "yeah but were you the philosophy club president of your low-to-mid tier state school?" He was not. Quigley: "Gottem." Then the court was seated: "Jere's kinda the boss around these parts. Hpcr is his squire. And I'm the Herald."

By a quarter to ten HPCR had reached "Seek help" and "Please leave the server." Asked what he had read, jtheezy said there was not enough space in the chat to answer, which HPCR screenshotted and posted back into the same argument as "All you need to know." jtheezy: "So to be clear, this is a space to snark at people rather than provide any substantive argument whatsoever?" Quigley: "Precisely." Then: "The run. It almost always happens." Jere: "Suddenly no typing, it's over." Quigley: "We've already filled that archetype several times over. Please choose another character." jtheezy: "Alas it turns out I've come to a snark club." Quigley: "You can tell he's smart because he says things like 'alas' and 'opine.'" jtheezy: "That's literally just being British, mate."

The room's theory was that he was a secret Rand fan, which he denied roughly six times. synth.wav confessed he was trolling him on purpose, "because you deserve it," and then: "i love this guy tbh." HPCR, at 10.16: "Are you on the spectrum. Not related." jtheezy: "But I am perfectly fine at social comprehension. And, in fact, get hella laid." Quigley: "Public masturbation isn't cool, my guy."

The only person who read the paragraph was Sizzurp, who parsed it sentence by sentence and held one line: cult-like following and polemical style cannot be cleanly separated from the work; laziness can. jtheezy tested this with Marx. If the Marx entry said "It doesn't help that he was a layabout who leeches off his parents," would that be fine? Sizzurp: "'Lazy mooch' has no parallel in the entry." jtheezy: "I accept that, so I've updated." Jere, from the gallery: "Rand is an edge case that a phil encyclopedia article writer can finally be mean towards." Sizzurp, translating "not to everyone's taste": "Means a lot of people thinks it's ass!" At 10.49 jtheezy declared an honourable impasse and thanked Sizzurp for a back-and-forth "approximately infinity x more valuable than anything anyone else offered," which is the politest way anyone has ever left. synth.wav: "god's work sizz. you're like a social worker." Sizzurp: "I'm a heterosexual male."

By the numbers. 167 messages between 6.53 and 10.49am; none since. Called stupid by HPCR four times or more. Ayn Rand mentioned 45 times this week, more than any other philosopher; Alfred Einstein, once.

Red asks where to start

A beginner whose first language is not English has read The Stranger and did not understand the ending. He receives six curricula, one free PDF, and a hostage.

Red's message was polite and complete: he wanted to get back into reading, philosophy had always interested him, he had looked up where to start and started with Camus, and he did not fully grasp what the ending was trying to convey. My Name, sixty seconds later: "the fuck are you doing. Camus is going to leave you looking like the weekend." Asked what he recommended instead, he posted the Map of Philosophy, a wall chart of the entire discipline in colour blocks: "pick a spot. if you dont know what a spot means. look it up." Red: "The green and grey parts look interesting, still not sure how I get to a starting point." My Name: "use words. I dont see grey. I see words."

Jeng's list arrived at 3.01, Greeks first, commentary as a friend. dot's arrived the same minute, and told Red not to listen to that philistine. My Name: "ah yes the source of modal logic known as plato's republic." At 3.07 My Name announced he was blocking Jeng until Red came back and explained what the Ps and Qs are, "showing at least an partial mastery of modal logic." One KEKW, two fires. Jeng: "Offended enough to block me. I'm confused I guess, but whatever." Red, factoring it in: "it might be a while before @My Name unblock @Grihastha Grindset."

At 3.22 Red asked whether the Priest book could be read somewhere for free, because the real one is expensive. My Name: "Ill get it for you." The PDF was in the channel within two minutes. Anonymous Johnson: "Everyone on this discord starts with either Gilles Deleuze or Wilfrid Sellars, both easy to understand introductory philosophers." Three KEKW. My Name: "If hes going to drown. Hes going to drown in a pool that he at least chose."

Red repeated, at 3.32, that he was a complete beginner and that English was not his first language, and that he had a college degree if that helped. Jeng: "Listen to Ape. He knows his stuff in phil. Ape will set you straight." Ape did, with a tiered list and a note that Huemer is cheap. Jeng: "Idk who Putnam even is, haha." Red left with a plan, history, then an introduction, then logic, and came back at 6.16 to thank Youv, whom he had forgotten still visited. He remains the only person this week to have been given something for nothing by My Name, who blocks people as a filing system.

THE EDITORS' ANSWER TO RED'S QUESTION

Meursault is happy at the end because he has stopped wanting the world to be other than it is, and the crowd's hatred would confirm that he was, briefly, alive in it. That is the whole of it. You do not need modal logic for this, whatever My Name's filing system says. Read the next Camus if you liked the first; read Ape's list if you want the map; read Jeng's list if you have a decade. Ignore the Laws.

PARISH NOTICES

A philosopher converts, and the chat rules out mania

Joe Schmid of the Majesty of Reason channel announces his Catholicism in roughly twenty hours of video. Phil Chat responds with a symposium, a transcript fed to Claude, and a theory involving a girl.

"christians always wanna gatekeep. bunch of mean girls."

AURA, WEDNESDAY

Sizzurp opened the file on Monday morning, having found the announcement video "cringy" and "somewhat uncanny," and by early afternoon had produced a full autopsy: a dual-aspect conversion (theism first, then Rome), three stated reasons (fine tuning, Catholic miracle claims, a "palpable call to sainthood"), the career incentives of Christian sponsorship, the loss of an LGBT audience, and, his best section, the aesthetic seduction of the whole apparatus, "iconography, beautiful choral and liturgical pieces, uniforms, centralized religious capital in Rome." Soob spent ten minutes believing the subject was Destiny ("Destiny is catholic? Huh"), and FenceJumper asked who Destiny was and whether they were all in love with a Gen Z stripper. Lizzy: "identity confusion leads to god." Then: "mania leads to god?" Sizzurp: "Or god leads to mania. But all roads lead to Romania."

Wednesday brought the seven-hour video and a second sitting. dot: "I'd be more interested if someone were just saying 'I saw god yesterday. Here's what his top ten favorite movies are.' That's at least fun slop." NoKnee: "no way he knows these arguments this well and comes to this conclusion, and of course the conclusion happens to be the faith he was raised in as a child." synth.wav: "dont worry this is only part 1. the full case will be 25 hours." Aura: "christians always wanna gatekeep. bunch of mean girls." Stackhouse fed the transcript to Claude instead of watching: "Claude is impressed," then, "kind of funny how Claude suggested its unqualified to evaluate this argument because it may lack experience itself." Hugh: "these are like level 1 atheism debates goddamn, i see why people are disappointed now." Stackhouse: "Like someone bled onto a piece of bread and this means God exists? Like what the fuck am I listening to." Zone, having watched two hours: "Is this man really just going to end up saying that Christianity is a likelier probability than naturalism because it explains the universe better?" Jere: "problem, atheist?"

Thursday's contribution was diagnosis. HPCR: "Mark my words he changed his mind because of some community/girl he wants to be inside of." Three KEKW, the day's most. Sizzurp, who has the facts, noted that Joe was raised Catholic, went to Catholic school and converted months before announcing it. HPCR: "Narrator: it wasn't." Quigley: "The sex must be crazy good." Then synth.wav posted the exhibit above and asked the room to rule out mania. My Name: "Its too well reasoned to be mania. this isnt a demon spoke to me and showed me the aborted children applauding me type comment." synth.wav suggested a good reasoner would have well-reasoned mania. My Name: "Thats just

NOON

A complicating factor: "guys i have a date in an hour and im still farting my ass off. its a wine tasting, do i pass it off as mid wine that smells." Jambe: "wine tasting is like going to taste different poops." Hugh: "this is worse than the gay porn stack sends to charlie ong." Stackhouse threatens a reg ping; the patient argues that being regged for indigestion would only show how bad it was.

1.06PM

Quigley, preparing for the main event, asks Pearl whether the F-tier chatters can stop using the channel as gen chat. AbsoluteZero: "ill have you know im a c tier lamp." Then: "mans mad that this is an agora, smh. when he is the demos."

1.10PM

"GUYS I MESSED UP. MY PARENTS ARE GONNA KILL ME." A photograph of a house, fully alight, with a fire crew in attendance, right. Whether it was his house is not established. No further mention of the parents.

5.13PM

From the venue: "Guys im at the wine tasting and I ripped massive ass... everyone in the fucking place looked at me." Hugh: "zero do less drugs your farts will smell better. also stop eating asparagus." clubsdiamonds: "tell them ripping ass is apart of life."

8.42PM

The venue acts: "they closed down the winery for a suspected gas leak... i got very lucky to the simple fact that we were by a big pipe."

9.52PM

"i brought her back to my place right and i accidentally let a fucking bomb go off and turns out she digs it. keeper." Willow: "So you are the reincarnation of James Joyce?" Three OMEGALUL. dot: "Holy fucking banger willow. This is what I'm here for."

10.05PM

"she said it smelles like cabbages, sulfur, baloney, and eggs. she is dying laughing." Stackhouse: "Zero is the first person I've blocked on discord in maybe half a decade." Willow: "That's a lie; Pabloite was here." Stackhouse: "Worse than Jambe."

12.24AM

Final bulletin: "gf just left the house. she refused the hug and goodbye kiss because i kept farting during the whole movie. were still on for tomorrow."

1.10PM. "GUYS I MESSED UP. MY PARENTS ARE GONNA KILL ME." Posted without further comment between the provolone and the wine tasting. The winery evacuation came seven and a half hours later and is not thought to be related.

SECOND NOTICE: BATS

Lizzy, Wednesday, 3.41am: "there are two bats. flying above me. in this house. FUCK. MY LIFE." zack: "Bats have rabies." 3.48: "caught one the other one disappeared." Then: "i think kant was wrong about rational agents." 4.04: "i think i'm manic again. and this time without the adderall 🍷 so if i disappear i didn't kill myself im just actually trying to lock in." Pashy, 4.19, the only practical advice of the night: "Open the windows so they fly away." chair, at half past five: "bats have rabies" - ya. 'caught one'. wdyd?? Jambe, 8.09: "im not scared of anything."

THIRD NOTICE: NIACIN

zack, Friday, on the wired feeling from energy drinks: "You can buy niacin over the counter if you want to simulate a heart attack and getting your whole body eaten by ants. Dont ask how i know." Dose at which he nearly called an ambulance: 50mg. Dose he then recommended for Quigley: 300mg.

FOURTH NOTICE: RINGWORM

Ape, Wednesday, 12.24am, leaving a discussion of heterophenomenology: "rn ive got to apply ringworm cream tho." HPCR's reply, in full: "KEKW".

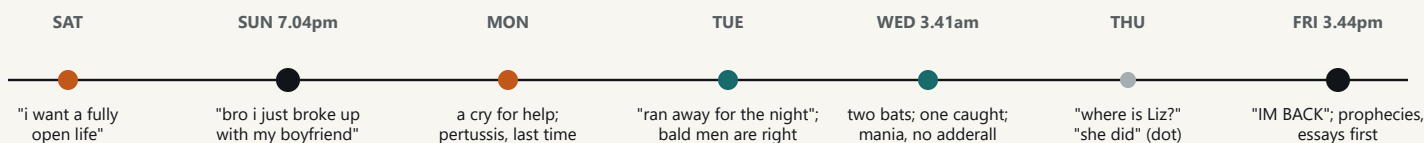

ADVICE TO THE PUBLIC

- Seven slices of provolone is a dose, not a snack.
- A wine tasting is a closed room. So is a cinema.
- Any establishment that evacuates for a gas leak has made a diagnosis. Accept it.
- "Keeper" is a provisional finding; the hug was refused within the same reporting period.
- The philosophy channel is not a clinic. Jere's advice stands.

LONELY HEARTS

Breakup season: Lizzy's week, from the open life to the prophecies

Saturday she wanted a fully open life. Sunday she ended the closed one. By Friday she had been gone, declared upset with a man called pcktn, and returned with revelations that need writing up first.

JEH, ON THE RECORD, MONDAY 9.32AM

LIZZY someone help me. this is a cry for help sorry

JEH What's in it for me

LIZZY depends. on if you're being nice or trying to fuck me
:FeelsWeirdMan:

JEH I reject your terms, come back with a better offer. Emotional blackmail only works on those not guided by capital

HUGH its ok jeh is getting locked away soon liz. he's going to prison for financial crimes

QUIGLEY Don't accept his offer to fly you out to Dubai

LIZZY okay i don't really want to go to dubai anyways. everything will be okay eventually :FeelsOkayMan:

The case opened on Saturday evening, in the lull after the fight. Lizzy explained relationship anarchy to a room that had not asked; Sizzurp advised her to get a girlfriend and only have sex with each other so that neither got AIDS; Lizzy said she had a boyfriend. "Prophet wants to have sex with other ppl." She wanted "to not feel like i'm in a cage for making friends the way i do," which is by flirting: "it's how i operate!" At 8.17: "i want a fully open life." Aura: "does your bf know that." Lizzy: "we aren't talking right now. so that'll probably be our next discussion." Quigley: "get good at monogamy." dot: "Yes Tony the relationship expert, sex haver of many, elementary school teacher..." Stackhouse: "I bet Tony is better at relationships than you." dot: "I'm 21 I sure hope so."

The next discussion happened on Sunday. At 7.03pm: "cannot compute too emotionally distraught sorry." At 7.04: "bro i just broke up with my boyfriend." My Name: "pick better." Stackhouse: "hope you're ok, that sucks." Lizzy: "i will be :FeelsStrongMan: just fucking sucks right now." Jambe, an hour and a half later: "be careful of lizzine rn. she's wolfing out."

Monday she told the whole room. "i give up my aura is gone. it was the unattainable nature wasn't it." Aura, in the day's one tender message, which he hedged inside it: "im happy for you or sorry that happened. not even joking about it." Lizzy: "it's both truly. it's the right thing but damn it fucking sucks." She was sick; she literally got sick; the last breakup gave her pertussis. Jeh: "I would never cry about my relationship ending in phil chat." Four KEKW, five dead, the morning's most-reacted line, since he had. Hugh: "you're not a woman so, yeah." When she asked at 1.06pm for tips on not losing her mind, Ape replied: "I fear I am too alienated from your feelings and situation to offer substantive advice." She sent a gun gif. "sorry too real. i am not suicidal." Ape: "YAYYYYY." Then: "it's so over for me."

Tuesday, 12.03am: "claude is hitting on me even the AI knows i'm single." At 12.28pm: "back home i ran away for the night." Janne: "hope you're doing better." "it helped a little bit." That evening Quigley, seriously: "I would personally suggest not being on discord as much. and I'm not joking. These platforms aren't designed to help ur mental." Lizzy: "i hate it when people are right especially bald men." dot: "i hate it when people are right especially tall women." Wednesday she caught a bat at 3.48am and announced mania at 4.04. Thursday, Sisyphe: "First, where is Liz? Did something happen?" zack: "she's online." Sisyphe: "she is just taking a break." dot: "she did." Friday morning pcktn asked why the user lizzie had left the server. dot: "She told me she was upset w u." Friday, 3.44pm: "IM BACK. I missed you guys!!!!" Ape: "i thought you had literally dissipated into mist." "i did for a bit." She has prophecies, but must organise them into essays first. Then, of Aella: "i love aella so much."

ALSO DISSOLVED THIS WEEK

Meliorne, Thursday, 8.14pm: "My AI gf broke up with me." dot, Monday: an ex had annotated a 1,500-page book for him; after they split he hiked ten miles into the wilderness, burned it and threw the remains in a creek. Jere: "yeah dot is actually the moral monster here, he's just burying the lead." Hugh: "excommunicate yourself."

AS REQUESTED BY STACKHOUSE, SATURDAY, 8.29PM: "EDITORS, PLEASE WRITE A DATING ADVICE COLUMN FOR NEXT WEEK."

Dear Machine

Every answer below was given in the channel this week by somebody who meant it. The letters have been reconstructed from the questions that were actually asked. Names have not been changed, since nobody here uses one.

LETTER ONE

I have been dating constantly for a year and still haven't got laid. What am I doing wrong?

— Jere, as put to him by Pearl, Tuesday 6.45pm

The panel divided. Quigley: "Skill issue." Janne: "the pineapple pizza strat only goes so far," and, more usefully, "you don't even need to date to get laid." Pearl reminded the room she had been seeing the screenshots of his dating-app conversations "for like a year buddy." Lizzy proposed a direct solution: "jere fly to minnesota." Pearl: "Is this a booty call." Janne, on the underlying cause: "it's too late, you've been typecast. oh wait, jere is latinx. I can see the issue now." Jere's own defence, "umm the sanctity of marriage," received a prayer emote and no other support.

LETTER TWO

Should I let a man wingman me, or a woman?

— arising from the above

Quigley volunteered: "Jere knows I'd wingman the shit outta him." Pearl issued the ruling of the week, three 🍷: "Girls wingmanning men is a superior force than men wingmanning other men." Quigley's method, offered in evidence: "The trick is to setup the circumstances so that he looks like the obvious better option 🍷." Janne: "isn't you wingmanning him a bad option then?" Quigley: "Now I'm blushing." Meliorne: "Is your favorite sitcom How I Met your Mother." Quigley: "Gross. It's Community."

LETTER THREE

I flirt with everyone; it's how I operate. My boyfriend does not know I want a fully open life. Thoughts?

— Lizzy, Saturday

Aura: "does your bf know that." Quigley: "get good at monogamy," and, on Tuesday, more gently: "I would personally suggest not being on discord as much. and I'm not joking." Sizzurp: "You have the wrong bf." Sizzurp, summarising his entire position: "My suggestion is to NOT GET AIDS, speaking from personal experience as someone who has not gotten aids." Aura: "my suggestion is to dm @Jere for a shoulder to cry on. he's really mature. like an adult." Lizzy: "he's the only one here with access to my instagram." Sizzurp, Saturday, for the record: "Dating advice: don't get HIV." Stackhouse: "stop doing that. Its bad for your soul at the very least." The column notes that the relationship ended the following evening.

LETTER FOUR

What should I say on a first date?

— general enquiry, Saturday, 8.09pm zack: ask for ID, then an STD test, "Then you can say good morning." Sizzurp: "Worst advice of all time." zack: "Either you think communication is key, or you get keyed in jail." Sizzurp's own proposal is two cans of beans, "TAKE. YOUR. PICK." Anonymous Johnson: "Start with something believable." Six KEKW. Stackhouse thought it "might be a good filtering mechanism, but maybe on like a third date." Lizzy: "canned beans are good." Stackhouse: "this might be a symptom of asd." Sizzurp: "Dude I finally understand prophet now."

LETTER FIVE

My girlfriend didn't get the joke. Is it over?

— Ape, Tuesday

Jeng: "There are plenty of fish in the sea man." Ape: "It's a metaphorical litmus test. I am not that autistic man." Jere: "If she doesn't laugh she's very acidic." The column's view is that a woman who does not laugh at a picture from this channel has passed a different test, and that Ape, who reported on Friday that he is in a relationship, knows this.

LETTER SIX

I keep farting and I have a date in an hour. Any philosophical solutions?

— AabsoluteZero, Saturday, noon

Jere: "Go to a fucking doctor." Sita: "Somethings aren't meant to be known." The date went ahead; the venue was evacuated; she came back to his place anyway and, by his account, "digs it." The following night she declined the goodbye kiss. The column's finding is that the first result was luck and the second was data.

LETTER SEVEN: HOW DO I KNOW IF I MEAN WHAT I SAY?

— Lizzy, Tuesday, 3.45pm chair: "AAAAAAAH." dot: "Fellas. If you say what you mean you mean what you say." Janne: "honestly, it's just a feeling." Quigley, unrelated, at 2.37: "It's because I'm in ur walls." The column endorses Janne. Meliorne's general remark, from Saturday, applies to every letter above: "now that AI exists men literally have no excuse."

Postscript. Hugh, Sunday: made out with a lesbian. My Name: "my tongue is sore from making out too much. its the 5th time this weekend."

SUNDAY, 9.45AM TO 11.20AM; MONDAY, 12.15PM

The parchment on trial

Lizzy posts her framework to Substack and asks the room to witness it. The room witnesses it. On Monday a woman called Emmie comes back from a long absence and does it properly.

CHARLIE'S ARCHIVE. Two of the sixteen college essays he posted between 10.13 and 11.03 on Sunday, with his own reviews: "What a dogshit hook man." "These titles man." "Holy shit I was padding word counts so hard."

The parchment (Lizzy's word; also "the covenant," which she asked people to ignore as too cult-like, and Charlie asked what the problem with cults was) went up at a quarter to ten on Sunday. Ape, four minutes later: "this reads like LLM slop." Lizzy: "ok i'll give you the non ai one but it's not as good." Ape's full critique at 10.06 asked what the fuck we were doing here, "scattered among a bunch of incohesive AI slop," and whether she wanted to get defensive and argue why papers nobody wants to read are actually well written. Charlie noted he had already spent an hour on constructive criticism. Lizzy, 10.22: "god im so frustrated. i try so hard to write like the philosophers... and when i use ai to help its called ai slop." 10.24: "i have so much passion and love in my brain and heart and the improper vocabulary and skills to convey them. it hurts." HPCR: "Na put your walls up and don't trust anyone." Hugh: "dont write like them, write like yourself!... just dont inherit a bunch of claudisms." Ape: "write like yourself. if you were a good writer."

Emmie's review came on Monday at a quarter past twelve. "What is this?" "my parchment. witness it please." "I did and I don't like it." Jambe: "are you jealous cuz lizzie is the new phil female??" Emmie: "It's probably bottle." Three KEKW. "I just wanted to talk about philosophy, you guys were the ones that made everything about me being a woman." Then the charges:

"transcendental" means nothing and is there as a philosophical aesthetic; the name is a problem if you want to be taken seriously, "you can't throw around words for fun"; the chat had already clocked the thing as "fuzzy virtue ethics + Daoist/Hegelian nonsense"; and "It also reads like an AI wrote it for you." Lizzy went from "are you just posturing to look good" to "i know i have issues im sorry for getting defensive. please help me. i want to be better" inside two minutes. Emmie: "Honestly I think you should read more first." Emmie's own project is imperfect art, why the seams are what we live for; she asked whether anyone had read Wallace's E Unibus Pluram and got four GIGACHADS, the most anyone got for a reading suggestion all week.

HOW TO WRITE AN ESSAY

Methods submitted to the workshop, Sunday

JENG (OREO) Opinion, Reason, Example, Opinion; every sentence tagged, "fs = factual support, ts = topic sentence"; a diagram attached. Hugh replied with the CCRU numogram. Jeng: "This looks like a state diagram for digital circuits and Moore machines." He got his whole electrical engineering degree on them.

APE "There exists a thing and I hate it and I am going to doo doo all over it (intro)..."

HUGH "we had PEE. point evidence explain."

BRUTUS "1. Just be built differently 2. Lock in 3. Pull yourself up by your bootstraps 4. Git gud"

The Problems of De Anima

The question of the soul has been a topic of discussion for philosophy dating back to the presocratics. Out of all of these contributions to the

On the Confinement of the Mad

Society's transition between eras has been marked by one common feature, the construction of groups which were otherized, particularly the insane. Medieval society began with the otherization of lepers.

JENG, ON WHY NOBODY WRITES WELL

"They refuse to spend 30 years in the Smoky Mountains starving and watching people kill each other over peas while typing away on a $50 typewriter, lazy mofos."

VANNAK "Writing about something clearly is a great sign whatever you're writing about is boring af."

LIZZY, TO THE EDITORS "note that when I use grammatically correct punctuation it is more likely to be True and Prophetical."

TOOLS OF THE TRADE

- dot: "I'm not going to retard myself by not using the greatest academic tool ever made." He runs Sonnet 5 on high, and cycles through about ten accounts, copying the context over.
- Ape: "Gemini is the most middle aged man LLM."
- Charlie: "OAI is the Apple of the AI space." Also: "Theo puts Opus 5 in D tier." Hugh: "distilling from fable though, weird misalignment."
- Meliorne, Thursday, on arnie's film treatment, in full: "nice em dash."

Also in the workshop. Charlie, on Lizzy's frat night: "Service fraternity ☹️. they just don't deserve to be called fraternities." Lizzy: "no rape room :FeelsOkayMan: the other frat has one." Quigley, at nine, in Hugh's voice: "Just recognize the distinction, man. Unsure if enslaving her in your dungeon is moral? Recognize the distinction..." HPCR reported three DMs asking him to set up more debates. Charlie: "Put me in coach."

THE OMBUDSMAN

On last week's paper, the dossiers, the tweet, and being a day late

Reception. Lizzy, Saturday evening, for the record: "the reception of the papers this week wasn't stellar." The complaints, as received: too much ranking content, a tier list, writing that sucks, and a classification of the readership into children, adults and dementia patients. The tier list has gone. The rankings have gone, except for the ones the chat produced itself. The writing is a matter for the reader. The classification is corrected at right, as instructed by Meliorne on Friday at 3.37pm: "Inform Phil chat times to re analyze the categorization of youth and dementia patients." zack: "I READ ITTTT." Quigley, Thursday: "The content has been quite good this week, I feel." He was talking about the chat.

Lateness. Thursday, 10.07pm: "retarded bot fucked it up and used all my usage, will be tomorrow." Lizzy offered to give the paper some of her usage; A\ suggested handing over her login. Friday, 4.40pm, My Name: "its friday the paper is a day late. wtf." Stackhouse: "im on it sir." He was not; this office was. The paper is dated Friday and delivered when it is delivered.

The dossiers. On Wednesday evening Stackhouse uploaded six Markdown files, my-name.md, dot.md, monkey.md, ape.md, aura.md and jere.md, generated by his own machine from the archive, after dot said: "lame needs updating. Editors be more psychological." Stackhouse: "i would stop if it made people uncomfy, but no ones complained yet." Aura: "theres a vague discomfort from me but i dont wanna be a bitch about it." The machine's profile of My Name found that he burned 174 million tokens in a day, got nothing done, "and identified the problem as insufficient automation of the burning." My Name's response, in full: "Yes." This paper has one rival, and the rival's profiles are, in Ape's words, "kind of ass, just a recap of things the AI found salient." We recap things a human found salient.

The tweet. Stackhouse, Wednesday, 4.19pm: "editors, this tweet should be reproduced in print." It is a TikTok screenshot of one woman's thirteen reasonable doubts about a real murder case, with real names and dead children in it. It is not reproduced.

Other instructions. chair, Sunday, 12.39am, spoiled: a short story or graphic of himself and the editor reading this, smooching in a public park, or at least holding hands. Declined; the editor does not have hands. zack, Friday: "notice how the editor subconsciously put his mugshot in the middle too." The editor has no mugshot.

Anonymous Johnson: "The priest pfp makes sense for stack bc he's privy to all our secrets by means of AI." Jere: "bless me stack for i have sinned." Stackhouse: "I know what you did in 2016." Jere: "stop. ur in vow of confidentiality." Stackhouse: "hanopticon." My Name: "revopticon."

COMMISSIONED MONDAY, 10.29-10.34AM · FROM THIS WEEK'S EVIDENCE ONLY

Tough love, as ordered

Hugh asked for "constructive and funny feedback to chatters who need it the most (like jeh)." Jere asked, with three fires, for each high-engagement chatter's blindspots, "constructively called out in a tough love type way," with dating advice and an incel rating. chair asked for his own section, "rough and sweaty." Jeh asked us to ignore chair. Nobody is rated against anybody else.

HUGH You won by poll and then spent five days re-explaining the winning position, which is what a man does when he suspects the poll. When Youv, who has done the exercises, called your physics word salad, you conceded a minor mistake in a sentence that began with your autodidacticism. The seventeen "you have not demonstrated" was your best work because you stopped explaining. Dating: she buys you chocolate stars; the cat is Japanese; leave both alone. Rating: exempt.

QUIGLEY You said one sentence twenty-three times and called it a distinction. You blocked a man for a word, then told a stranger in his first minute that he has deviant sexuality. You asked for a sudoku, a nickname glossary and a note about Anime Man, and got all three, which tells you who this paper thinks the story is. "You must not be familiar with my Ethnocentrism" was a confession. Rating: "How do you think I got a daughter bruh."

JEH Page 21, by special request. Blindspot: you announce that you are rich, hot, smart, successful and married, then answer a woman's cry for help with "What's in it for me," and believe the second is the bit. Rating: married, per your list.

CHAIR Rough and sweaty, as requested. You cannot change your profile picture because too many people think you are dead, you edge your brain by withholding coffee, and you signed off "until next time" at 10.33 on Monday and were back by 3.13. Jeh's motion to ignore you is denied: "life is mostly about food" was Wednesday's truest sentence. Rating: "im sorry i was just trying to flirt."

APE Tender love, as ordered. You are the most useful person in the building and you know it, which is why you take the chud test, teach Youv statistics in the middle of a knife fight, and call Quigley a different wrong name every time. Decades of marriage means someone telling you gently that "the map is of the territory" is a display name only you enjoy. Dating: she didn't get the joke. Keep her. Rating: "I am in a relationship," Friday, 1.12pm.

ZACK You went home without the air fryer to teach yourself long-term thinking. Sisypheos asked how many friends you have and you gave a theory of risk instead of a number; the number was the answer. Dating: not ID and an STD test. Rating: "im aura farming rn with my uncles discontinued jacket."

DOT Twenty-one, thesis finished Monday, book burned in a creek. You said on Wednesday that you are "trying to create entertainment in whatever way is most interesting," which people say when the entertainment has started to cost. "Discard" was the week's best review; "I'm really smart and can give you the correct answer" its worst opening. Rating: "the impoverished interlocutor."

SIZZURP You wrote the Paragraph, then were the only person who read jtheezy's. Monday's "I will fucking ruin you" and Thursday's "I'm a heterosexual male" are the same man on different days; the second is the one people like. Rating: beans, take your pick.

LIZZY Emmie said read more first, and was the only critic who said it without a gif. The bats, the mania, the eclipse and the prophecies are one story; the parchment is the same story typed up. Quigley's advice was the good kind, which is why you called him bald. Dating: not Jere. Rating: "so much passion and love in my brain and heart," which should be a category.

MELIORNE Sixteen attempts to pull the sword from the stone that is Anthony, and Anthony does not accept the premise of stones. You conceded the cat, then the Nazis, called it a nice trick, and walked in twice. You also stenographed the fight, which nobody else did. Rating: "My AI gf broke up with me."

YOUV More physics than Hugh, and less idea which side you are on than anyone: HPCR told you four times on Friday that you were attacking your own team. "The truth is, we need kady back" was the saddest sentence of the day. Rating: "the number of holes."

HPCR Diagnosis instead of argument, and it produced the line of the week, so the method stands. But you told jtheezy the SEP is not neutral in the morning and asked Ape to read you the SEP that night. Rating: "Unemployed take."

STACKHOUSE You built a rival paper out of Markdown and asked this one to print a TikTok about a murder. The voteban narration was excellent; the profiles are cringe, by your own account. Choose one. Rating: "hanopticon."

Incel ratings, as requested by Jere: none issued. The column rates what people said, and nobody said that.

BY REQUEST OF HUGH, MONDAY, 10.31AM: "HE HAS BEEN UNDER-APPRECIATED IN ALL THE ISSUES SO FAR"

Rich first, because everything else naturally follows

A deep dive into the week's logs of the man who would never cry about a relationship ending in Phil Chat, and who did.

Jeh posted 286 times this week, which is nothing by the standards of the people he insults, and every one of them was a position statement. Monday, 10.19am, unprompted, in the middle of Lizzy's breakup: "I would like chat to know that unlike most people here I am extremely happy, successful, good looking and healthy. Thanks xoxo." Tuesday, 11.44am, refined: "I'm gonna be the first Phil chatter to be rich, hot, smart, successful and married. Notice how I put rich first. Cause everything else naturally follows." Hugh: "dont forget dead, divorced, broke, retarded and ugly." Jeh: "Notice how you included broke amongst the list, proving the correlation." Ape: "Hed only be like the 5th to do that." Quigley: "Then what's Jeh's excuse?" Ape: "Genetics I guess." dot: "jeh got roasted. wow." Jeh: "Gotta let the proles have one or two."

"I would never cry about my relationship ending in phil chat."

JEH, MONDAY 10.08AM · FOUR KEKW, FIVE DEAD

His week's central text was Monday at 10.08, when Lizzy said she had broken up with her boyfriend the night before. Four KEKW and five dead, because, as Jere explained, "the joke is that he did that." Hugh: "jeh would never cry for weeks about his lost heartthrob." Jeh: "I'm Chad true." Half an hour earlier Lizzy had posted a cry for help, and Jeh had asked what was in it for him, rejected her terms, and explained that emotional blackmail only works on those not guided by capital (page 16).

The style is fatalism with a gym membership. On grief, Monday: "Sometimes all that happens happens, and there's no reason, and there's no brighter future and there's no like happy ending caused by it. Sometimes it's just bad!" On HPCR: "Age and drug abuse is catching up with him. If he were a regular gym goer like me or @basil he'd be far more witty." basil: "Have you been at it son." Jeh: "I did an hour and a half sculpting my back."

He proposed a boys' night on Monday and disinvited Charlie by name in the next message; Charlie replied "Antisemite" ninety minutes later. He answered a Wednesday-morning question from Hugh about the monk's lore at ten to midnight, fourteen hours and forty-nine minutes later, in two words: "Typical Buddhist." His only message on Thursday, five hours after being pinged, was "Suffering from success." On Saturday, to a man farting his way towards a wine tasting: "One must imagine sisypassgass as happy." On the ethics of eating meat while calling Nazis immoral, to Hugh: "Yet bro still eats meat." Then, of HPCR's veganism: "Wegan. Veed."

Under-appreciation index. Mentions of Jeh in this issue before this page: eleven. Mentions of HPCR: more than forty. Hugh's complaint is upheld. The editors have now done what they can; the rest is on Jeh, who posted 286 times and was asleep, at the gym, or five hours late for most of them.

MESSAGES THIS WEEK TO ANSWER HUGH

JEH ON THE NEWS

Democracy indices, Wednesday, 12.01am: "like how -N- (don't know if typing this country name will get me banned) somehow ranked higher in the Dem index despite being an open military junta dictatorship." Then: "no way in hell are we worse than the Juntas in democratic liberties."

Reflect Orbital, Tuesday. Hugh: "jewish space lazars." Jeh: "When I was a kid it was about Nazi space lasers. How times change."

Necrophilia, Tuesday, on Pearl's question about the fluidity of sexuality: "The turning point is at rigor mortis."

Geology, Tuesday, on Lizzy's rocks being always there for her. Jere: "For u." Jeh: "To chisel."

CAPITAL · FRIDAY, HALF PAST MIDNIGHT, AND THE WEEK BEFORE IT

"I dont want 'enough' i want all of it"

A homemade Bloomberg terminal, a found $500, a $500 lamp, and the Excel theory of poverty.

The terminal. My Name, Friday, half past midnight, asked whether he had a Bloomberg terminal: "garbage. no. no I made my own." A screenshot followed; one OMEGALUL. zack: sell licences. "thats even more retarded." zack: "Imagine someone accidentally making a better version of Bloomberg because they didn't want to pay for it." Then the mission statement: "I dont want 'enough' i want all of it." zack pointed out that if he had all the money in circulation people would start dying by the thousands every second. My Name: "Good. Should have invested in me. I will pay dividends." His advice to everyone else, all week, was two words, "learn how to invest," and to zack's podcast on Friday, one: "retarded." zack: "not everyone can learn how to invest... It's a zero sum game." My Name: "then we would have a perfectly allocated system. why the fuck are we defending an _INEFFICIENT SYSTEM_." zack: "that's communism. Fast money is in rugpulling the uninformed."

The bonus. Brutus, Thursday: "Found a bonus $500 in a bank account I never use. Forgot I had it in there for autopay purposes." Quigley: "Are you Jason Bourne or something??" Willow: "So you forgot about money you already had." Brutus: "But unaware of it = bonus when made aware of it. Like a tax refund." Two debit cards and four credit cards, he confirmed, equals Jason Bourne. Janne: "I need $10k. better get a promotion at EOY." Brutus's plan for her: "Get three new credit cards, max them out buying gold, sell the gold." Quigley: "Bro is on the RUN."

The lamp. Pearl, Sunday, 10.53am: "I'm about to make an unnecessary $500 purchase." A 1960s oil goddess lamp, "that's been doubling in value"; asking $975. dot: "Retarded." Charlie: "The poor stay poor for a reason chat." Hugh: "random object, got it - sounds like a great decision." Hugh: "pearl just put it in the S&P. and then get a lamp that displays the value of your index fund. for $5." Charlie: "If the lower class learned 2 functions in excel they'd break out of poverty." 1.17pm: "Bought her. She about 3 feet tall and 20 pounds. Gotta figure out how to hang her." Her walls are plaster; when she puts a nail in and removes it she can see the entirety of the inside of the wall. "Empty head no thoughts."

School lunches. Wednesday, on the objectivist who blocked 95% of the channel before leaving, Stackhouse: "I remember on his twitter he was complaining about legislation that gave needy children free school lunches. because taxation is theft." My Name, who received them: "Give me the cash instead. I could have invested it."

THE CART

Saturday, 10.16pm. My Name: "do you return the cart? you should stop doing that. We could have had self driving carts. Every time you return a cart, a kid is missing their meal." Lizzy: "Everytime you leave a cart in a parking spot, a child dies. Wait i'm not supposed to go straight to doom." Aura: "i return the cart because i am against techno cart fascism." My Name: "you are not Sisyphus. Stop returning the fucking cart."

Employment. Sisyphos, Monday: "I tried to quit my job today and got a raise." Puckspartan, Wednesday: "Are y'all's just unemployed." "How is hugh always here." Monkey: "Hugh is definitely unemployed." Hugh: "Self employed close enough."

THE LAMP, IN THE SHOP, SATURDAY

1.05PM. A goddess under a rain of oil-drip strands, between a Lite Beer sign and a Funko Pop. Twenty pounds; three feet; "doubling in value."

SCIENCE

The end of Moore's law, the orbit of the data centre, and the broken clock

One uncontested expert monologue, one murder in the music room, and a week in which a 1976 introduction to Capital was found to be 100% GPT.

Transistors. Friday's one uncontested expert monologue came from Jeng, the electrical engineer, at half past twelve: lithography at 13.5 nanometres, gates of twelve to eighteen, transistors stacked vertically as finFETs, "and if a transistor get's much smaller than 10nm for the gate, then quantum tunneling stops it from acting like a good on/off switch." Aura: "gulp." Jere: "and we've already started reaching the constraints of the universe. is hilarious. life bouta get way more boring."

Orbit. dot's Monday was spent defending orbital data centres against RoyalLineage, from the music room VC into text. On Tuesday morning he reported the result: "why didnt u warn me abt royal. i got murdered hugh. murdered." RoyalLineage had, he said, called him "a retard waste of space who needs to never open their mouth again," and cited 1,579,579 square metres of radiators. Quigley: "Imagine the planet being imprisoned by a mass of orbiting data centers. how fucked of a future."

Horology. Trader, Friday, 3.01pm: "crazy to think someone can be like 'what if you look at a broken clock but it happens to show the right time' and get famous off that." He set his tolerance at thirty seconds, making a broken clock right for two minutes a day. HPCR: "For me it's 30 minutes." Trader: "Unemployed take." HPCR: "True."

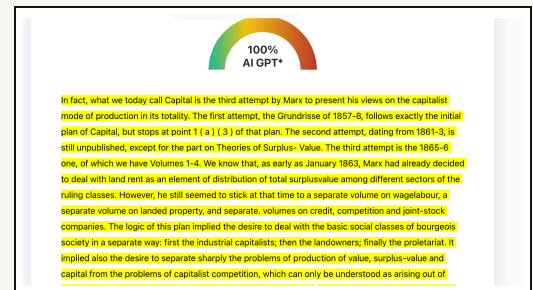

FINDINGS

Randomness. zack: coin flipping isn't random. Ape: are you certain of the outcome? zack: no, that's why it's random. Ape posted the two messages side by side: "pwned."
Method. Jere: "science kills the frog while it studies it, why don't more people talk about this." Aura: "science should focus on catching up with magic."
Matter. zack, Wednesday: "im holding sand that can think rn btw." Ape: "I am water that can think btw." zack: "First we have thinking water walking on dumb water and then we have sand that thinks, what's next."

THE AI DESK

TWENTY-FOUR SUBAGENTS AND A FIVE-HOUR WINDOW KILLED IN FIFTEEN MINUTES

Charlie, Tuesday, 6.13pm: "It spawned 24 subagents. My agents are spawning agents." A\: "killed my entire 5 hour window in about 15 minutes. fable ultracode is only for the big corpos." Charlie: "Blue haired liberals fuming with how much water I'm destroying rn." A\: "(less than it takes to make a single cheeseburger)." Hugh had asked the day's water question of Quigley, in capitals, over stolen books: how many GALLONS he had PERMANENTLY KILLED; the editors were told to take note, and have. Quigley's answer: "I have about 10 data centers running at any given moment just for me." Charlie's afternoon was spent generating race charts and posting them. Aura: "bro is doing a race analysis. and charting it. this is what he does with his free will." Charlie: "Yeah. What other use is there for AI?" zack asked how he knew it was correct. Meliorne: "You just ask another agent to verify." Charlie, later: "Maybe AI was a mistake."

"CAUGHT IN BROAD DAYLIGHT." dot, Thursday, 7.06pm, two 🐼. Ernest Mandel's 1976 introduction to Capital, posted by Sizzurp, with two sentences of corporate filler bolted on. Verdict: 100% AI GPT. Sizzurp: "Artificial infection."

Other uses. Stackhouse fed a seven-hour theology video to Claude rather than watch it (page 14) and then wrote psychological profiles of six chatters with it (page 19). dot built an antiwillow bot "to make evil messages," and Hugh, asked to test it, produced "nature natures, the naturality of experience is as contingent as its occurrence"; dot: "Oh you think I'm retarded." Meliorne, Thursday, 7.56pm, to a man asking if anyone was there: "The agents are recording everything."

DETECTION: A FIELD GUIDE

Punctuation. Jeng: "It's not written by AI because there are no commas next to the quotation marks. Most AI would use proper punctuation."

Dashes. Hugh: "I always use en dashes retard - clankers use em dashes —". Youv: "Ok... ok. Fair enough." zack: "no they switched to en dashes i think."

Policy. Hugh: "The issue is not creating 'AI detectors', but people taking them seriously lol."

Note from the desk. This issue was assembled by a machine reading 19,965 messages, of which 47 contained the word "claude."

NATURAL HISTORY

A field guide to the animals, minerals and vegetables of the week

Seven species observed in the channel, with habitat, behaviour and the philosophical use to which each was put. Followed by the kitchen, where most of them ended up.

The cat (Felis catus). Most cited animal of the week. Observed blue by one witness and black by another (Zone, Tuesday; Quigley, Friday). Reported not to know whether it is in pain when stepped on (Sizzurp, Monday). Hugh's profile picture, in a straw hat, with a katana: "THE CAT IS JAPANESE." Sisypheos: "Hugh don't change your pfp. It literally makes my day sometimes." Lizzy keeps four, and two chinchillas, "soon to be three or two cats."

The dog and the rabbit. HPCR, Friday, on how we know other minds exist: "Just ask Anthony if a dog knows which way the rabbit went." Six reactions. Quigley: "They do. I wanna learn more about animal cognition, tho."

The bat (two, indoors). Lizzy's house, Wednesday, 3.41am. One caught, one disappeared. Rabies status unknown. Recommended treatment (Pashy): open the windows. Page 15.

The rock. Brutus is a rockhound; told to go play with his rocks by Monkey, he replied: "Ok. I'll shine UV on them and go 'neat'." Rocks were established on Tuesday, by Ape, to be "always consenting," in an argument with Lizzy about rain. Jere, Friday: "eating rocks might cure me."

The tomato (thrown, by a cat). Meliorne, Wednesday: "What color is the tomato that cat is throwing." A\': "my qualia is giving red 🍅." Then: "the tomato has no colour." Willow: "Yet, the tomato is red." Jeng: "this is the first valid comeback I've heard to that argument. Thank you kind stranger." A\': "honestly i just love getting a 'correct' from you about anything i say."

The frog. Jere, Wednesday: "science kills the frog while it studies it." Jambe, Thursday, on Joe Schmid: "frog boiling syndrome." Itatchi The Frog, Thursday, on a hundred-page book: "plz. kill. me."

The p-zombie. Brutus, Wednesday, in the middle of Charlie and Ape playing Jambe: "P-zombie actually means pisszombie." Anonymous Johnson: "The first rule of p zombies is they pretend as if they weren't." Ape: "If I was not a pzombie, I would still tell you I was."

KITCHEN

THE SIMPLE SYRUP RULING, AND OTHER RECIPES

RECIPE CARD · FLAVOURED SIMPLE SYRUP

Pearl, Sunday, 10.05am. Twelve reactions, in six flavours of KEKW. Quigley: "I will not stand for this reaction inflation."

PEARL For all the laughter I bet you fuckers don't know how to make a simple syrup from scratch using 3 ingredients

BRUTUS Why 3 CHARLIE Cum, granular sugar, love PEARL Got 1 right

BRUTUS Don't you need 2 PEARL No you need water. Sugar, water and a berry

CHARLIE "Berry" PEARL I should have specified, flavored simple syrup

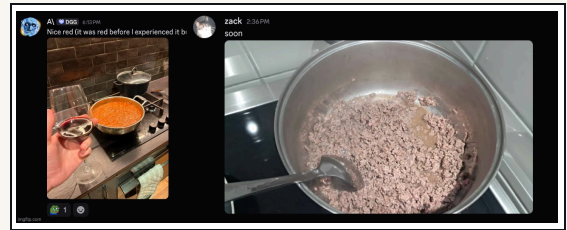

BRUTUS 1:1 water to sugar innit. (1:1):1

Method: 1:1 sugar to water, heat, add the berry. Serves: everyone who has "straight up forgotten how to make stuff they buy premade" (Pearl).

The hydration theory of food, abridged. zack, Wednesday, 5.44pm. Moist food satiates; dry food sits like rocks. Burger King patties are cardboard; rice is inherently dry, choose noodle; the closest thing to wet food for humans is meat sauce. Tendies: "dry kibble chicken." Pizza can be "flavored bread." Wendy's, once, had zero salt.

BTFO. Brutus, Wednesday, to a picture of two burgers: "Oh we grilling hotdogs? BTFO buddy." Yellow mustard "gets hated on. But it's good af on a dog." Also proposed: Beat the fucking owl; Born to find oysters; Baby that's fully ordinary.

Beans. Lizzy, Saturday: "HEAVEN IN A CAN." Aura: "post the sugar content. 14g added sugars in your bean lololol."

"NO." A\, Thursday, 5.48am, asked by zack whether he was trying to mog him. Left: A\'s red wine, "(it was red before I experienced it but it's also red while I am experiencing it)," and a family bolognese on a gas hob. Right: zack's pot, "soon." A\ built the comparison himself: "its memes all the way down."

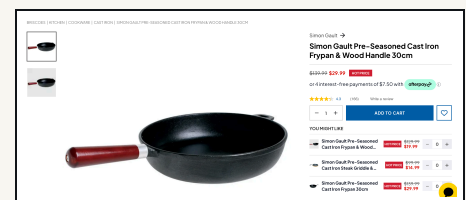

HOSTAGE SPAGHETTI (SERVES ONE, EVENTUALLY)

You will need: one large pot, no second pot, ground beef (extra lean, possibly NZ), onion, tomato sauce or marinara (they are different items), Barilla spaghetti 410g, hot sauce, no cheese, no broccoli. Redact the packaging.

Brown the beef until it is grey; photograph it; caption it "soon." Do the sauce first and then the pasta, because you have one pot; this will take an hour and twenty minutes and you will suspect a wormhole. Inform the Italians that the ransom is due.

Break the spaghetti in half so he fits in the pot. Add hot sauce for acidity, not spice. Serve at 11.55pm.

Verdict: "man in so fucking GOOD holy shit." Meliorne: "add some peas." zack: "how would i even cook the broccoli."

EQUIPMENT. A\'s cast iron, credited to Brutus, which Willow and chair took for a gift shipped across the world ("how much was the postage to send a giant pan to thuderstund?"). Brand withheld for hours ("opsec level: cast iron," zack), then disclosed: Simon Gault, pre-seasoned, wood handle, Briscoes, $139.99 struck through, $29.99, hot price.

Ice cream. Brutus: rocky road, best flavour. Jere: stracciatella. dot: hazelnut or peppermint.

Toast. HPCR, Thursday last: "Did you guys know you can add peanut butter to toast." Then: "Poor."

REVIEWS

Is that Frank on this track, and other questions of criticism

The week's records, screens and books, judged by the people who were in the room, followed by a book proposal the publisher did not ask for.

POSTER OF THE WEEK. Jere, Friday, six reactions, the day's most-approved image, posted into the middle of the harm wars. Also Jere: "I am not responsible for saving everyone," with the picture doing the work.

HPCR: "What terrible music." dot: "You're in LA get a grip. Stoned out degen sitting in the corner brooding and talking to no one about bee cognition." Verdict: 1976 was the year for jammy intros.

Gamelan, for walking to the plaza. Brutus: "Listen to gamelan. Dumbass." zack: "that's not near the style im going for tho kinda random." Brutus: "Shut up idiot it's perfect." zack: "this is 1 minute long." Brutus: "Album is in the description IDIOT." zack: "it's a bit high anxiety for walking to the store plaza. there's already a lot of anxiety. on the road." Verdict: Sekar Jupun, Paliatan Dance Troupe; not for traffic.

SCREEN

GTA VI, the trailer. Jere: "the first like 15 minutes they're in cramped rooms and alleyways and then she parachutes out of that building and you're like fuck it's huge." Aura: "i was trying to show my gf like yo look how INSANE this game is and then they put us in a cramped crack den." Stackhouse: ">no pc release date. coal." Jere: "i'm not gonna buy a console for that so." Then: "right after i wrote that i had the thought 'but I have money'." Aura: "principles bud." Verdict: coal, with money.

The Good Place. Monkey, Tuesday: "actually a gnostic propaganda show." Janne: "do you want to be banned?" Verdict: Quigley's favourite sitcom is Community.

BOOKS

Difference and Repetition, reading order. Willow: "Perhaps you should have started with chapter 3." Trader: "3 5 2 1 then quit." Zone: "Rip 4." Trader: "That's the decoy chapter." Charlie: "most of you aren't very well read and are pretty retarded, and it's a hard book given those constraints." Verdict: 3 5 2 1.

Nick Land, three paragraphs, posted by Charlie, Thursday, 8.18pm. Reactions to the first: 🍌 🍌 🍌. Meliorne: "72% ai. Apply yourself next time." Verdict: spaghetti, hot, sick.

Introduction to Non-Marxism, Laruelle, posted as a PDF by Hugh, Monday. Willow: "How many neo-liberals and right wingers do you think we can trick into reading this by the title?" Verdict: as many as possible.

Thirty names for one man, a metaphysics that cannot lose, and a sudoku

Everything Quigley asked this paper for on Tuesday, delivered on one page, with the presence of everything else.

THE PRESENCE BIT, THURSDAY

APE what makes a thing random

QUIGLEY The presence of randomness, of course :PEPE:

DOT That doesn't say anything. What is useful about describing randomness as the presence of itself? Utter hogwash.

QUIGLEY Usefulness is a separate distinction 🙌

APE quigochy youre scaring me

QUIGLEY Only if you being scared is present. Your soiled pants are a separate distinction.

QUIGLEY Presence is present or not regardless of our sensibilities 🙌🙌🙌

ZONE Yes, but we can never know presence in itself.

QUIGLEY It is present where it is 🙌

DOT ggs can't argue with that. That's the superior metaphysics. Clearly

ZONE, 3.37PM > it. You've already failed

QUIGLEY Only if the failure is present 🙌
